Coolidge and the Farmers
Big Family—Low Culture?
A Foolish Foot Race

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1926, by The Star Company.)

BROOKHART AND NYE, who beat administration senators in the primaries, attend a farmers' conference called by Governor Hammill of Iowa. One newspaper says this "may develop into an anti-Coolidge demonstration."

REMEMBER THAT farmers in Kansas will get about $150,000,000 for their wheat crop this year. A good deal will go to pay mortgages, but many farmers will remember that wheat now selling at $1.45 a bushel represents a considerable improvement on the price just before Coolidge was elected President.

Many things may happen before 1928, but the renomination and election of President Coolidge is one of the things that probably will happen in 1928.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE has been asked to take the stump in political campaigns this Fall. His friends hope he will say no. He owes it to his following not to tie his ship to anybody else's ship. A considerable number of Republican

SIX BOMBS IN BOX SET-OFF BY 'DUD'

Camp Devens, July 19.—A balky fuse, setting off a box of TNT bombs today, blew off the right leg and three fingers of Captain Lewis R. Edmonds of Somerville and Hull, mangled one of his arm, and injured six privates nearby, although less seriously.

The captain, an overseas veteran, commanding Company A, 101st Engineers, National Guard, is in a critical condition at the camp hospital and may die.

The following six privates were treated at the hospital for cuts and shock:

John J. Lloyd, Co. E, of Swan street, Medford.

R. W. Cochran, twenty-two, Co. E, No. 34 Hancock street, Medford.

Chester Scoyne (or Chester S. Coyne), twenty-two, Co. E, of North Saugus

Walter Harris, twenty, Co. C., of Cambridge.

Charles Jeffrey, nineteen, Co. B., of Albion street, Somerville.

John Beeler, twenty, Co. B, of Cambridge.

Privates Lloyd, Cochran and Scoyne (or S. Coyne) all are members of the Lawrence Light Guards of Medford.

The terrific blow-up of the six TNT bombs occurred while the 101st Engineers were engaged in manoeuvers with the 13th Infantry of Regulars on the banks of the Nashua River.

As a problem to solve, the First Battalion of the 13th Infantry was to establish a bridgehead on the far side of the river. The enemy had theoretically destroyed the artillery bridge now crossing the river and the engineers, under fire, were to throw over a temporary bridge.

Captain Edmonds, explosive expert, was 150 yards in advance of the main body and fas accompanied by a small group of enlisted men.

FIRES SIX ROUNDS.

To simulate the enemy fire, it was planned to toss off the TNT bombs and Captain Edmonds was having difficulty with the fuses, which apperently had become damp during the night's rain and would not carry the flame.

He tried six successive bombs, with their fuses attached, and laid each one down beside him in a box as useless.

As he was attempting to better his luck with the seventh, one of those in the box—the fuse evidently smouldering undetected—exploded, setting off the other five.

A great cloud of smoke and dust enveloped the advance group and when it had cleared seven wen were prostrate on the ground and one of these was the captain, torn and mangled, his right leg gone at the knee, one arm a shattered mass and three fingers hanging by shreds of flesh.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL.

Captain Edmonds and the six privates were hurried to the camp hospital, where Colonel Frank P. Williams?, Boston surgeon and surgeon-in-chief of the 26th Division; Captain Daniel Hurley, Hub physician; Captain W. Turner and Captain Heilman, made a hurried inspection of the wounded captain and decided to

FRENCH FRANC FALLS TO 46 TO THE DOLLAR

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—Another sensational collapse in French francs took place today in all the leading financial centers of the world as a result of the fall of the Briand-Caillaux Ministry. The demand rate in New York dropped 25 points to a new record for all time at 2.15 cents. With a nominal par value of 19.3 cents each, or roughly, five to the American dollar, the franc is now quoted at approximately 46 to the dollar. In one year, it has declined over 50 per cent.

Weakness of the currency reflects the defficulties encountered by the French government in funding its debts and balancing its budget. It has been accompanied by a so-called "flight from franc," or the transfer of huge sums of capital from France to other financial centers with a gold standard currency, particularly to London and New York.

Report Herriot Has Formed New Cabinet

Paris, July 19 (A.P.).—Close friends of former Premier Herriot today stated that he had succeeded in his task of forming a Cabinet to succeed that of M. Briand. No official announcement of this has been made.

It is now reported that M. De Monzie, who has once been ousted as Finance Minister, has agreed to accept that post in the Harriot Cabinet.

Speculators Helping Franc in Slide Down

Paris, July 19 (A.P.).—Endeavors of speculators to profit from the present unsettled political situation and the tendency of the rench eople to get rid of paper money as soon as it comes into their possession are believed by financial experts to be th etwo big reasons for the continued downward slide of the franc.

Unloading of paper money by the people has reached the point where many merchants refuse to see most kinds of commodities except in limited quantities.

The financial authorities persist in the opinion that the present break in the franc is not justified by anything but weakening confidence in a solution of the financial stabilization problem by Parliament, and that after the solution of the Cabinet crisis there will then be a sharp recovery in the franc.

THOUSANDS DIE IN CHINA FLOOD

Shanghai, July 19 (I.N.S.).—Thousands were drowned and more than 300,000 persons were left homeless when the Yangtze Kiang River dykes burst, flooding the Chinglehsien district in Hupei Province, according to word received here from Hankow.

Arrangements for relief for the stricken people were rushed, the message stated.

EX-MAYOR OF QUINCY DIES

Gustave B. Bafes, ex-mayor of Quincy, died today, aged sixty-five, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George H. Eggleton in Braintree, after an illness of a year.

Born in Boston July 24, 1860, he later moved to Quincy and established a plumbing business now carried on by his sons. He was prominent in local politics for many years, serving two terms as mayor, 1916-1917 and 1922-1923.

As a result of the former mayor's death, all flags on public buildings in Quincy were half-staffed today.

Mr. Bates was a member of Aleppo Temple, the Odd Fellows, Royal Arcanum, Quincy Y. M. C. A., and Quincy Yacht Club. He was also interested in the Bates Bros. Quarry, Weymouth.

He is survived by a wife, Mrs. Annie M. Bates, a daughter and three sons, Russell T., Stanley S. and Earl S. Bafes.

PRINCE SAVES SINGER AFTER ROW IN CAFE

Budapest, July 19 (I.N.S.).—Ilonka Csaky, Hungarian actress and singer, provided a melodrama which surpassed anything she has done on the stage, after she quarreled in a cafe with Prince Domenico Russo, a member of the Italian embassy staff. Ilonka rushed from the cafe and hurled herself into the River Donau.

Prince Domenico was on her heels, plunged over the embankment and, at the risk of his life, brought her to shore. A reconciliation followed.

FULLER ASKS FACTS AS TO TREATMENT OF SLAIN WARD BY STATE

Governor Alvan T. Fuller today stepped into the investigation of the dismembered girl case, demanding from the State Department of Public Welfare a full report on its handling of Edith Louise Greene, the State ward, who was the victim of the illegal surgery tragedy.

'MONTE' WILL SPEND NEXT YEAR IN JAIL

"Count Monte," in reality Nicholas Wiseman, according to the police, must spend approximately one year in jail, after a fortune in a New York safety deposit vault proved nothing more tangible than a creation of Monte's imagination.

Last week he told the court that he had $8,000 in securities in New York. He was ordered to give his wife, who had haled him to court on the charge of non-support, $7,000 worth of these and keep $1,000.

Accompanied by a guardian of the law, Monte went confidently to New York, but the various vaults he visited revealed nothing more valuable than so many burnt matches.

Today he again faced the court. He was given a six-months sentence and a fine of $100 for non-support of his wife, Estelle, and his daughter, Miriam, and a like sentence and fine for deserting them.

Monte insisted in court that he holds a rightful place in the French peerage, telling Judge Fosdick that he is the son of the Marquis Montefiore, and that he was born in Paris.

SEIZE 2 AFTER WILD STOLEN AUTO CHASE

A wild ride in a stolen automobile from Revere to East Boston in which six young men took part, resulted today in the arrest of two of them after they had attempted to steal another car and one had been knocked unconscious by a watchman.

Herbert Cully of No. 85 Mt. Ida road, Dorchester, and Barthelomow McDonough of No. 274 Eustis street, Roxbury, the men arrested, were to be arraigned in East Boston court charged with reckless driving, refusing to stop on signal, and attempted larceny of an automobile.

McDonough was treated at the East Boston Relief Hospital for a scalp wound inflicted by the night watchman of a garage on Bennington street.

According to the police Cully and McDonough, with four other men, were tearing over the road from Revere to East Boston when Motor Cycle Officer Charles Evans ordered the driver to stop. Instead the man accelerated the speed of the racing car, with Evans giving chase.

At Moore and Bennington streets the speeding machine collided with that owned and operated by John Drohan of No. 47 Saratoga street, [illegible], doing considerable

WOMEN JOIN MEXICO STRIKE FOR RELIGION

Mexico City, July 19 (I.N.S.).—A religious strike is under way in Mexico today.

As a measure of protest against the Mexican government's policy with regard to the church, particularly the measures taken against the Catholic Church, Mexican women have started a general boycott.

The National League for Defence of Religious Liberties is also launching a campaign, which it is said aims at bringing the business and social life of Mexico to a standstill until the religious regulations promulgated by the Calles government are lifted.

Abstention from work, reduction of purchases to the bare necessities of life, and non-participation in social functions, will be urged upon all Catholics.

GUESTS AT DR. WALSH'S DEATH REVEL SOUGHT BY HUB POLICE

PHYSICIAN AND WIFE IN COURT

Walsh pleaded not guilty to performing an illegal operation and to conspiracy, while his wife pleaded not guilty to being an accessory to an illegal operation, before the fact, and to conspiracy.

Following the arraignment, they were ordered released again on bail, Walsh in $15,000 and Mrs. Walsh in $2,000, and they sneaked swiftly from the courthouse by a rear exit to escape the curious crowd that filled the courtroom and overflowed in the corridor outside.

Mrs. Walsh, who was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Helen Bourne, showed unmistakable signs of the ordeal she experienced in appearing in court on the grave charges. She constantly dabbed her moist eyes with a handkerchief, as did her sister.

"Oh, God! this is terrible," said Mrs. Walsh several times before the arraignment took place and while the trio were being eyed by the spectators.

but stylishly attired in a tailored suit of blue, with small black turban hat. The only note of color was her tan shoes and stockings. Set off conspicuously by her dark clothes, her face appeared deathly white.

The ordeal would have been brief had not Judge Fosdick been delayed nearly an hour in getting to court. This forced the three to sit for 50 minutes in the front of the courtroom awaiting his arrival.

"Rosey" Rosenberg, South End taxi-driver, was summoned to the district attorney's office for a second time today for questioning by the authorities working on the case.

Rosenberg, at his first questioning three days ago, said he knew Dr. Walsh and had last seen him on Friday, July 9. This questioning took place when Walsh was still being sought by the police. Asked if he would stop Dr. Walsh on the street if he saw him, Rosenberg is quoted by the district attorney's staff as replying that he would not, as he did not care to mix up in these matters.

DATE IMMATERIAL.

The indictment naming Dr. Walsh and others arrested in the case give the date of the alleged illegal operation as Sunday, July 11, it was learned. The conspiracy indictments give the date July 16. When District Attorney O'Brien's attention was called to the second date, which was only last Friday, long after the girl's death, he said the date given in the indictment would not affect the prosecution.

The man who procured the clothesline for the persons who disposed of the dismembered body of the girl was identified by a witness today, according to the police. The witness is said to have seen him entering the building at No. 1779 Washington street, where Dr. Walsh's office is located, with an unwrapped piece of clothesline in his hand last Monday afternoon.

Police and private detectives scoured the city and suburbs in search of guests at the gay party which was taking place at the Walsh home, No. 1779 Washington street, during the early morning hours of July 11, when Edith Greene lay dying in the apartment.

Hunt was also on for Dr. J. Leo Hanson, now sought in four States, for a third Boston physician and for a chauffeur suspected of being the driver of the car in which the cut-up body of the girl was taken to Mattapan.

Included in the party at the Walsh apartment that the authorities are seeking details on, was a well-known Boston doctor and a lawyer, the authorities declare.

The hunt for Dr. Leo Hanson, wanted on an indictment charging that he was an accessory after the fact to the death of the 19-year-old State ward, has shifted to New York. Seven detectives are there to arrest him. His where abouts are known, it is said, and the arrest is expected to take place shortly.

Dr. Walsh has gone into seclusion. He remained in his apartment at No. 1779 Washington street, South End, all Sunday, and denied himself to visitors.

POLICE CALLED IN.

One, possibly two, other physicians were guests at the Walsh "anniversary" revel, according to authorities. While the orphan girl was dying in the Walsh apartment, those merrymakers were becoming so boisterous in their celebration, that neighbors complained of them

It was Patrolmen Harvey Yates and O'Leary of Station 5 who warned somebody in the apartment to be quieter.

NOTICED LIGHTS.

"I noticed the lights there and heard the sound of loud voices," said Yates. "I thought little of it until I learned from the persons in the street that neighbors of the Walshes had complained of the noise. Then with O'Leary I rang the bell.

"It was 4:45 Sunday morning. 'Put a lid on that music and keep quiet,' I told the man who came to the door. Who it was I don't know. He replied, 'All right,' and slammed the door.

"Almost right away half a dozen women and five or six men came out and got into four parked automobiles. They were mostly drunk and they drove off to the accompaniment of a chorus of shouts. I didn't know any of them and do not believe I can identify them."

JUST AHEAD OF POLICE.

The hope of detectives, attempting to round up attendants at the party, is to place Drs. Walsh and Hanson at the scene of the crime together. Further, they say, its may even be possible to prove that one of the other "anniversary" attendants was told of the girl's condition, looked her over, and then left the house.

Whether the money paid by young Ford to Dr. Walsh to operate on Miss Greene was used in staging the revel of July 10, is another important question that detectives are trying to decide. Also whether there was an excessive amount of liquor on hand during the session, is something else that they are hoping to determine.

effect that liquor supplied for the occassion was furnished by a South End bootlegger. Police are checking up on that angle of the story. If he appeared at any time to replenish supplies that could have exhausted, he may be used to identify persons seen by him in the house.

Dr. Hanson, police say, has been but a step ahead of them in their search. He is known to have crossed th border lines of at least three States.

unsympathetic or lax, nevertheless his action proved in effect a direct reply to the declaration of friends of the victim that "the State was to blame."

"I am looking for information and so have asked the Department of Public Welfare to give it to me," said the Governor. "I expect that the facts surrounding the case will be forwarded to me within a very short time."

Friends of "Edie" Greene quote her as saying, just before her death, that she feared stern punishment from the State board if she gave birth to an illegitimate child. These friends believe that this fear helped lead her toward the decision to chance the illegal operation that brought on her death.

Still another friend, Mrs. Caroline Murray of Winchester, declares she would have given the 18-year-old student nurse a permanent home if the State would have permitted her. The officials of the Department of Public Welfare refused "because they thought 'Edie' was fitted for a higher type of work than housework," according to Mrs. Murray.

The Governor's action puts three distinct arms of the law at work on the case. It also partially answers the question of many persons who have interested thmeselves in the tragedy—what part will the State play in the investigation of the circumstances surrounding the young girl's death, and the prosecution of those responsible?

Calcutta, July 19 (A.P.)—Another serious Hindu-Moslem riot occurred today in a suburb, the police fired on the rioters, wounding several. The rioting continued.

WOMAN NAMES MAN WHO GOT 'BODY ROPE'

The man who secured the clothesline which was used to secure the two cardboard boxes and the burlap bag in which Edith Greene's dismembered body was disposed of, was identified today by a witness found in the South End, according to the police.

The witness, a woman, declared she saw the man enter the rear door of the building in which the Walsh apartment is located, carrying a coil of clothesline on Monday, July 11, 12 hours before the carved-up body was carried away.

A close watch is being kept by the police on the man she named, for he is also suspected of other connections with the case. An effort is being made to ascertain if he is the man who bought 50 feet of clothesline from the Economy Grocery store in Ruggles street on the same day.

The rear door of the building, opening from an alleyway, was used in all operations connected with the disposal of the body, the police say, and the witness found by the authorities is the same person who saw a woman drive thrice around the block in a blue roadster before heading into the alley, there meeting two men who carried two boxes and a bag from the building.

Dr. Hanson Famous for Defending Hub Police

Dr. J. Leo Hanson, sought on a warrant in connection with the death of the dismembered girl victim of the Mattapan box tragedy, was a friend of many policemen and four times appeared as witness at police headquarters in defense of patrolmen charged with being drunk on duty.

Twice he testified for policemen attached to Station 5 and twice for men of Station 16, Back Bay. Each time he declared the men were not drunk as claimed by their superior officers, thus contraverting testimony given by police doctors.

His testimony led to close questioning by police officials in charge of the trials as to his medical history, education and methods of reaching conclusions so entirely at variance with the testimony of the police physicians.

Only one person, so far as is known, called at the South End hotel, where Hanson stayed while in Boston, to see the wanted doctor. This man left immediately upon learning that Hanson was out, and a clerk who saw him could not say whether or not it was Dr. Walsh. He was described as a middle-aged man who wore a leghorn hat.

A special delivery letter which Hanson sent from the hotel is now in the safe there, having been returned by the postoffice because the man to whom it was addressed could not be found. It was addressed to Timothy Moore, No. 51 West 51st street, New York City, the police say.

TRAGEDY ENDS DREAM OF BOX CASE VICTIM

By PAUL WHELTON

There are two pictures; two settings widely divergent; frame of rose for one, the other tawdry tarnish—two canvasses between whose far-separated edges lies the span of swift and tragic existence, of life barren but hard-lived—of death banal, brutal.

Existence—by a girl who never had a chance!

Back eighteen years and more the first picture is dated—back to October 21, 1907, when the first chill of Fall was turning the season in Winchester, and when, in the still hush of a darkened room, a crippled mother, loosened hair framing her wan face on the pillow, nestled close a warm bundle that was her new-born child.

Edith Louise Greene had entered the world out of which, some day, all men must die—and all women.

Setting of roseate hue, this hushed room at No. 607 Main street, Winchester, where Edith sent forth her first faint cry; roseate because the dream of a woman had been realized, and always the dream of woman is motherhood.

But except for the first flush of happiness in motherhood, even the birth of Edith Greene was under a cloud and her life's beginning was against a handicap.

The father had deserted his fireside, and poverty, want and disease had stepped in to take his place.

The other frame, one encompassing still another hushed and silent place. But not a curtained room in Winchester.

A narrow ribbon of road, black beneath the faint light of the stars and bordered on one side with a stone wall, on the other by an iron fence.

Beyond the wall, broad-topped, row on row of mounds beneath which sleep the dead—New Calvary whose stones beam eerie white in the vale of those departed.

Dream Comes to a Tragic End

In the trees the night wind soughs, its gentle "shushing" sound barely discernible. From afar off the soft breeze wings to the sector of the dead the thin baying of a hound, disturbed from his slumbers—complaining.

Deep in the fringe of grass and underbrush beside the black ribbon of road, Edith Louise Greene, "child of destiny," rests, freed from the jibes and jestings of the world she had tried to win by laughter—and had lost in sorrow.

Two square boxes and a lumpy, inert bag only are visible beside the road in this July night of 1926 just before the dawn.

Edith Greene died as she was born and as she lived—without a chance.

In the town of Winchester, the cold, austere record sets forth that Edith Louise Greene, born October 21, 1907, at No. 607 Main street, was recorded with the town on January 7, 1908.

John Greene, farmer, born in Ireland, was her father. The mother was Catherine (Donahue) Greene, also a native of Ireland, where laughter comes easily and the bitter is lived in the hope that somewhere there is sweet.

Still on the cold facts—Edith's birth was officiated at by Dr. James Blenkhorn of Stoneham, a good and kindly man, who still lives at No. 26 Maple avenue.

The beginning of Edith Greene's story is really at a date somewhat earlier, however, for some of the incidents affecting the life of Edith, and its swift and terrible ending, occurred long before her arrival into the world.

Thus the first incident is recorded on the day, more than two decades ago, when Mrs. Caroline Murray, a widow, of No. 8 Elmwood avenue, Winchester, opened her door and took into her home a weary and much discouraged woman, fatigued after a day's work in a Winchester laundry.

Met Death Without a Chance

The woman was Mrs. Catherine Donahue Greene, and as she partook of the hot tea which Mrs. Murray, in the good-natured insistence of her race, had pressed upon her, Mrs. Greene told of her troubles and her discouragement.

Laundry work was hard. Afflicted with tuberculosis of the bones, she found it exceedingly painful to stand all day and iron out endless shirts and collars and other articles. Life held so little under such a daily toll.

Sympathetically, Mrs. Murray offered her new acquaintance work in the Murray home, but Mrs. Greene demurred because, she said, her legs were crippled and she could not accomplish as much as a normal woman.

But the widow stormed away her protestations, and Mrs. Greene agreed to work in the Murray household. The women became fast friends, but beyond learning that Mrs. Greene came from Stoneham to Winchester, the widow heard little at first of her past life.

Finally a man called at the house, and then came a second time, when Mrs. Greene introduced him as her husband, John Greene.

A few days later Mrs. Greene

$60,000,000 IN VETS' BILLS

"The six so-called veterans' acts passed by the last session of Congress have added money value to the veterans and their dependents of approximately $60,000,000 a year,' said Congressman James A. Gallivan of South Boston.

"So you see that, despite the 'economy' program of the present administration, the friends of the veterans in Congress were able to put through some much needed legislation, and we did this because we had the overwhelming support of the various veteran organizations."

Newark, N. J., July 19 (I.N.S.).—George M. Condit, 70, a messenger for the Reid Ice Company, was killed and Joseph Duff, 18, another messenger, was wounded today when four bandits fired on them as they left the company's plant here with $5,000, which they were taking to a bank. The bandits escaped with the money in a limousine, eluding pursuing policemen.

B., M. EMPLOYES ASK INCREASE

Nearly 5,000 employes of the Boston & Maine Railroad are involved in the demand for a new wage scale filed by the American Federation of Railroad Workers. Six cents an hour increase in pay and changed working conditions and rules are demanded.

The men affected by the demands are machinists, boilermakers, blacksmiths, sheet metal workers, electricians and car workers and the helpers in these crafts. Union officials point to the $5,000,000 profit they claim the road made during the last year as indicating the road's ability to pay.

MAN HURT IN BLAST TEARING ROOF OFF

Lowell, July 19.—One man was injured, and the whole roof of the heating plant of the Mongeau Building was torn off by a boiler explosion which roared out at Merrimac and Dutton streets, in the heart of the city.

James Felton, employed in Gaumont Radio Store, adjoining the heating plant, was standing in the doorway and the force of the explosion hurled him into the street.

All the windows in the plant itself and the radio store were blown out.

CHEERS FOR DE VALERA

Philadelphia, July 19.—The administration was severely criticized by th eAmerican Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, in convention here, for failure to recognize the Irish republic. Cheers resounded through the auditorium every time the name of Eamonn De Valera was mentioned. Mrs. Katherine Wheelwright of Rochester, N. Y., De Valeras mother, was seated on the platform.

One of the resolutions adopted endorsed De Valera's policy of permitting Republicans to accept seats in the Dail Eireann provided they are not compelled to take the oath of allegiance to the King of Great Britain.

Dennis Malloy of Chicago was elected president of the association. Other officers chosen included Elizabeth Needham of Massachusetts.

London, July 19.—A woman suffrage organization appealed to George Bernard Shaw for help in lowering the voting age for British women now 30 years.

'EDIE,' THE GIRL WHO NEVER HAD A CHANCE

confided to the widow that her husband had been left $1,000 by a relative in the north of Ireland and, although Mrs. Greene did not say so, she gave the impression in her talk that the husband was a ne'er do-well.

With the $1,000 Greene intended going on a visit to Ireland, his wife said. Sensing the situation, Mrs. Murray urged her to demand some of the money, but it was not until the two women had had many arguments in the matter that Mrs. Greene would consent.

HUSBAND VANISHES.

Then she would take only $25, which the widow banked for her, in Mrs. Greene's name. Greene then went to Ireland and sent back but one letter thereafter, the letter being followed by his utter vanishing.

That was in the Spring of 1907, and in the October following, little Edith Louise Greene was born, a pretty baby, the object of adoration by Mrs. Murray and her son, as well as Mrs. Greene.

Deserted by her father, Edith came into the world—child of a crippled, impoverished mother, loving from day to day through the labor of her toil-worn hands—and with each succeeding day becoming a tiny bit more feeble and less capable.

Exactly 18 years, 8 months and 20 days were to elapse before the hand of Fate hovering above the head of Edith Louise Greene all through her life, would fall with smothering palm—to pick up the fragments of her broken body and hurl them into the lurid tragedy known as "The Calvary Box Mystery."

This is the first instalment of the life story of Edith Louise Greene, "The Girl Who Never Had a Chance." The second will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American. Watch for it. Read it! Perhaps, some day, you may have opportunity to help a girl—another "girl without a chance."

FIND CITY IS CHEATED ON SCHOOL FEES

The Finance Commission today turned its spotlight upon the schools of Boston, particularly on none-residents of Boston who attend these schools, but who, says the Fin. Com., have defrauded the city out of thousands of dollarsb y evading the payment of tuition fees.

The commission has already investigated conditions in the Boston Teachers' College, and as a result of its probe $4,234.45 has been turned into the treasury.

The schools that are next to come under the Fin. Com.'s probe are Mechanic Arts High School, the Clerical High School, the Boys' Latin School and the Girls' Latin School. Fin. Com. heads predict that it will be found that the city has been defrauded of thousands of dollars by students who are actually non-residents of Boston.

EVADE PAYING TUITION.

In its finding the Finance Commission points out certain unfair conditionsw hereby a pupil from Revere pays his tuition regularly, while a student from New York by claiming to make his residence in Boston with relatives pays nothing.

Somet wenty-ones tudents of the Teachers' College will be compelled to pay their tuitions for several years when they report for study in September or find themselves excluded from the school.

The Teachers' College is the only institution sof ar investigated, but the searchlight will be turned on the other schools with the opening of the school year.

"DEAD" FATHER ALIVE.

The report of the Finance Commission cites one particular case where a student at the Teachers' College swore her father was dead, her mother compelled to earn her living by dressmaking, and the student herself made her home with an aunt in Boston.

Investigation revealed, according to the report, that the girl's father is alive and working, her parents own their own home in a city outside of Boston, are comfortably off and she actually makes her home there. Her bill for tuition will be more than $500.

PASTOR SCORNS "THOU SHALT NOT KILL"

MANY MOURN DEAD PRIEST

Workingmen and women, children and church and lay notables crowded St. Lawrence's Church, Brookline, at three masses today to pay their last tribute to Rev. Fr. Thomas F. McManus, who died Friday after serving for twenty-nine years as pastor of the church.

At 7 a. m. the first mass was sung for men and women who had to go to their work. Rev. Fr. James F. Cassidy was the celebrant.

At 8 came the children's mass, celebrated by the Rev. Fr. James D. Mullen.

CARDINAL PRESENT.

At 10:30 the funeral mass was celebrated with more than fifty priests, headed by Cardinal O'Connell, in attance, in addition to town officials and scores of well-known men and women.

Rev. Fr. John Gilday was celebrant at this mass, assisted by Rev. Fr. John W. A. Corbett as deacon, Rev. Fr. John Lyons at sub-deacon, Rev. Fr. William A. Connor as master of ceremonies, Rev. Fr. John J. Starr as thurifer, and the Rev. Frs. Thomas Farley and Conrad Quirbach as acolytes. The sermon was by the Rev. Fr. James J. Baxter.

BURIAL IN LOWELL.

With Cardinal O'Connell were the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Arthur T. Connolly, and the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Richard J. Haberlin.

The pall bearers were: Francis J. O'Hare, Dr. Joseph Fallon, Fred Love, Michael D. Mealey, Dr. Francis M. Manley, F. Joseph Unfersee, James Driscoll and Daniel J. Danker.

The body was taken to St. Patrick's Cemetery, Lowell, for burial.

POISON LIQUOR LAYS OUT TWO; ONE DEAD

One man is dead and another is in a serious condition in Municipal Hospital as a result of what police say was a drinking bout staged in the rear of the Revolutionary Monument at the entrance of the subway in Harvard square.

Patrolman Patrick Shea of the Brattle Square station, passing the monument, found the bodies of the two men, John Tierney of Washington street, Boston, and John Buckley of Ashmont street, Dorchester, stretched out on the grass.

He summoned the ambulance of the Central Square station and rushed the two to the hospital, where Tierney was pronounced dead and stomach pumps were applied to Buckley.

How long the men had been lying there before found is not known. They wer seen entering the place late last night, according to reports made to the Brattle Square station.

Alongside of one of the men was a half emptied bottle of "synthetic gin" which police officials say caused the death of Tierney and the condition of Buckley.

E. Chipps, wealthy lumberman.

The evangelist killed Chipps after the latter had called upon the minister, according to Norris' story, and threatened to kill him.

Rev. Mr. Norris was today conferring with attorneys in preparation for his defense. No action was expected to comef rom the Grand Jury today.

It may be some time before the Grand Jury action is taken, it was pointed out today. Jury cases are taken in order in which they are filed and warrant authorities have not yet intimated they would impanel a special body in the Norris case.

START CANTON CLEANUP DRIVE

Canton, O., July 19 (I.N.S.).—With the meeting of the inter-city council of all the civic clubs of Canton to lay it was expected a committee of 100 leading business men will be named to work with the county, State and Federal officials in prosecuting the search for the slayers of Don R. Mellet, 36-year-old publisher of the Canton News, and in cleaning up the city.

A shakeup in the police department, possibly resulting in the suspension, resignation or dimisal of Chief of Police S. A. Lengel seems imminent.

A petition to Governor Vic Donahey, signed by 5,000 churchgoers, asking the Governor to investigate conditions here and conduct a cleanup of the city will be forwarded to Columbus today.

KEMAL HOLDS 60 FOES FOR TRIAL

Angora, July 19 (A.P.).—The Turkish government is ready to raise the curtain on the second act of its prosecution of political opponents, thirteen of whom were hanged in the streets of Smyrna last week charged with plotting to kill the president.

The atmosphere of mystery and whispered conversation recalls the days of the sultans. All those under arrest are Unionists—members of the Committee of Union and Progress—feared for their political sagacity and influence abroad.

Not possessing a prison sufficiently large, the government has rented an old inn to imprison the sixty Unionists who are to come up for trial. Soldiers with fixed bayonets and wearing German war helmets guard the approaches fo the inn, as they likewise do Kemal's residence.

The city is filling with visitors, mostly diplomats and legislators and Turkish and a few foreign newspapermen. Khaki-clad trops are to be seen everywhere, giving the city the appearance of an armed camp.

HOLD UP 3 CARS IN 24 HOURS

Worcester, July 19.—The fresh wave of automobile hold-ups continued today when four youths, masked with handkerchiefs and using a stolen touring-car, robbed two couples within an hour, making three hold-ups in less than twenty-four hours.

They took $20 from W. H. Joy of Main street in a hold-up in Westboro street, where Joy was riding with a girl friend, and they robbed Theodore Provost of Auburn of $27 when they held up him and a young woman companion in an automobile in Granite street.

The automobile the thugs used was stolen from Sherwood Luce of Milford, and their methods were those of the former Troy gang that terrorized Worcester for months.

WATCH OUT! CHAOS, WAR ON TAP FOR TOMORROW

London, July 15 (I.N.S.).—Tomorrow will be one ofthe most vital days in history, possibly the beginning of a period of chaos, disruption, wars and earthquakes.

At least this is the assertion made today by the Rev. Walter Wynn, of the United Free Church of Chesham, who claims that from study of the great pyramid near Cairo, he was able to foretell the World War, predict the date of Germany's application for an armistice and many other equally important events.

Wynn is arousing enormous interest throughout England, superstitious persons fearing that the events he foresees mean the sudden end of the world. Wynn does not make clear exactly what is to happen, but he is certain that an era of catastrophe is about to be ushered in.

"The great pyramid, which was built by God cannot go wrong," he said. "I am no prophet; I merely interpret the prophecies of the pyramid. I believe I am chosen by God to pass this knowledge on to the world."

HALL-MILLS INFORMANT NOW HAS DISAPPEARED

New Brunswick, N. J., July 19 (I.N.S.).—Arthur S. Riehl, whose charges against his wife effectively blew the dust from the four-year-old Hall-Mills murder mystery, has disappeared, it was learned today when authorities started a search for him.

Two nivestigations are under way at the command of Governor Moore of the sensational charges made by Riehl in his plea for an annulment of his marriage to Mrs. Louise Geist Riehl. She was formerly a maid in the home of Edward Wheeler Hall, the minister whose body was found in a lonely field beside that of Mrs. Eleanor Mills, pretty choir singer.

FATIMA

New Uses
for two old friends

For generations the housewives of America have used Arm & Hammer Brand and Cow Brand Baking Soda as a real help when cooking.

Both brands are the same—bicarbonate of soda in its purest form, prepared with the utmost care and untouched by human hands until the package is opened by the consumer.

Both of these famous brands of baking soda are made by Church & Dwight Co., Inc., manufacturers of this household necessity for over eighty years. But the surprising thing about this baking soda—bicarbonate of soda—is its great value and many uses outside the kitchen.

AIDS DIGESTION

The discomfort caused at times by indiscretion in eating will be relieved by taking a small dose of Baking Soda (Bicarbonate of Soda)—½ teaspoonful in half a glass of cool water.

FOR HICCOUGH: Instant relief from hiccough can, in most cases, be secured by drinking half a glass of cool water containing a teaspoonful of Baking Soda (Bicarbonate of Soda).

SAVES THE TEETH

To prevent early decay of the teeth, they should be kept free of albuminous coating. This can be done effectively by the daily use of baking soda (bicarbonate of soda) as a dentifrice. Spread the soda on a moistened tooth brush, and brush the teeth thoroughly. This frees the teeth from dangerous film, and leaves the mouth clean and wholesome.

DELIGHTFUL FOR BATHING

To enjoy a bath that will give quick relief from that worn-out, exhausted feeling, dissolve one-half to one pound of baking soda (bicarbonate of soda) in a tub of hot water. Bathing in this has a delightful stimulating effect, it makes the skin soft and velvety, and corrects body odors caused by excessive perspiration.

These are but a few of very many ways in which Church & Dwight baking soda (bicarbonate of soda) renders real service to all the family. Keep an ample supply of Arm & Hammer Brand or Cow Brand baking soda in the bathroom, in the medicine cabinet, in the kitchen. A dozen times a day it will prove helpful—get a package today at your grocer's.

COLORED BABY IS GIVEN UP BY WHITE PARENTS

Tragedy is inevitably linked with death but in the case of one well-known Boston family the tragedy that ruined at least two lives had its beginning with the birth of the first-born.

The stork hovered about the handsome home where a beautiful young wife awaited the coming, and her rich husband was in a frenzy of anxiety, hope and pride.

The visitor came, a lusty-lunged, auburn-haired boy.

Even as the boy and mother thrived the tragedy descended upon the household like a thunderbolt from a sunlit sky. The youngster's color began to change, his complexion became darker day by day, and finally his hair began to darken and grow into kinks.

Pitying doctors finally told the father and mother the truth. The boy had colored blood in his veins.

Heartsick the two searched the family records as far back as they could be traced. Never was there a hint of miscegnation. The blood strain may have been carried through one side or the other for generations.

The father and mother decided to separate, even though the husband expressed his complete faith and confidence in the purity of his wife.

The boy was growing older. He would soon be of age when he would be able to appreciate his own awful position.

The father proposed that he be given over to a colored family of the best standing in the Middle West.

Then came the second tragedy for the mother. Be is color what it might be, the child was her son. He was near six years old and the mother-heart could not part with him. Finally the woman, sacrificing the longing of her own heart for the happiness of her boy, consented to allow him to be adopted by the colored family.

Attorney Horace Guild of Boston went to the Probate Court of Suffolk County and the little fellow was legally relinquished by his white parents and adopted by the colored folk.

Non-Stop Flight From Warsaw to Paris

Paris, July 19 (A.P.).—Lieutenant Thoret, the French aviator, piloting an airplane with a wing spread of 20 feet and a forty-horsepower motor, made a non-stop flight between Warsaw and Paris at an average of 90 miles an hour. Thoret left the Polish capital at 5:10 o'clock in the morning and arrived at the Le Bourget airdrome at 3:20 p. m.

The aviator had sufficient gasoline in his tank when he landed to proceed to London had he so desired.

SPURNS WIFE'S PLEA, KILLED

Brockton, July 19.—Raymond Dufault, 24, of No. 94 Franton avenue, is dead at the Goddard Hospital from injuries received in a fall from a roller coaster car at Highland Park, Avon. He suffered a broken leg, several fractured ribs and internal injuries.

Dufault took the ride despite the protestations of his wife, who had refused repeatedly to go on with him. Just after the car started down the first incline Dufault stood up in his seat and waved his arms. The car swerved around a curve and Dufault fell 40 feet to the ground.

MIDGET SLAYER TRIES TO BLOW WAY OUT

Chicago, July 19 (A.P.).—The record of escapes and attempted escapes from the old County Jail was given its most spectacular entry Sunday, when smuggled dynamite, fashioned into a bomb and believed to have been set by Henry J. Ferneken, midget slayer, in an attempt to escape his impending doom on the gallows, blew a 15-inch hole in the west wall.

DURKIN NEARBY.

Twenty-four prisoners, either convicted or awaiting trial for murder, including Martin Durkin, Sheik gunman, and Robert Scott, were in "murderers' row," most of them confined to second tier cells leading directly to the broken wall, when the explosion shattered the Sunday calm of the building.

The dynamite had been swathed in blankets, and the escape was foiled only by inches, the force of the smothered explosion ripping through all but three inches of loose brick facing the outer wall.

GUARDS SEIZE RIFLES.

With the explosion there sprang up a tremendous commotion, both inside the jail and out, such as has not been witnessed since the delivery which five years ago slipped "Terrible" Tommy O'Connor, on the eve of his execution, to the mysterious void which still shields him from the ever-waiting noose.

Fearful the bomb had shattered the wall and had opened to the prisoners a broad way into the free world, guards, armed with repeating rifles, sprang out to surround the jail a moment after the report had echoed away.

ships are destined soon to be sunk, particularly the foolish ships that sailed in the direction of the World Court.

SCIENTISTS SAY large families indicate lack of culture, generally speaking, and that as culture increases families grow smaller, the number of births per mother diminishing.

That may be so, but you are glad that Caruso's mother kept on until she had No. 19. He was Caruso. The number of births per mother MUST gradually diminish, since otherwise the earth would be overcrowded and men compelled to eat each other. You may be sure that nature will attend to that, wisely, as she keeps the trees from "growing into the heavens."

BUT THE NUMBER of children need not necessarily diminish. In the mysterious future some women, like the queen bee, may specialize in motherhood, having many children, other women preferring to have none.

You see signs of that, already.

THE YOUNG Men's Christian Association starts 12,000 boys on a two-year training period for a relay race against time between New York and Chicago, distance 1093 miles. The boys will run in relays, night and day, swimming rivers when necessary, bearing a symbolic bronze torch from City Hall to City Hall.

THAT QUITE useless experiment undoubtedly will injure the health of some of the boys and will cost money. Y. M. C. A. authorities might better buy half a dozen good flying machines from Fokker or Ford and teach 500 youngsters the art of flying. That would be doing something worth while.

AN ENGINEER plans an ocean highway for aviators, to be marked by buoys with floating landing places anchored 400 miles apart rising sufficiently high above the surface to let big waves roll under them.

THE IDEA, interesting now, will seem amusing to our descendants. A few years ago Northcliffe offered $50,000 to any man that would fly across the English Channel. In a few years flying across the ocean will be as simple as flying across the channel or the North River. The ocean flight will be made comfortably between breakfast and dinner and millions that read this will live to see it.

TWO FRENCH AIRMEN, Girier and Dordilly, have just flown from Paris to Omsk in Siberia, 2,920 miles in 29 hours, without a stop. This flight, that would have carried them across the Atlantic, sets a new record.

THE DISTINGUISHED and Right Reverend Dr. Manning, Episcopal Bishop of New York, sailed last week for Europe, leaving this sensible message:

"No one that reads history can think that the world is growing worse.

He adds that the "jazz period," with its smoking and drinking among women, is fading away.

BISHOP MANNING in France will study the great cathedrals, and see in one of them huge stones dragged along the ground, mile after mile, by crowds of men, women and children, working for the glory of God and no other reward in the Middle Ages.

He will see REAL cathedrals, built with a Christian enthusiasm that never sent a collector into Wall Street and never included a "sports feature" among its stained glass windows. And he will wish that his cathedral building activities had fallen in those ancient days of deeper faith.

THE 29 MOHAMMEDAN seamen of the British ship, City of Newcastle, deserted at New York, camped on the dock and cooked their own food. They discovered that their cook was a Buddhist and they couldn't eat of his cooking because, as everybody should know, what a Buddhist touches is contaminated. They may take that less seriously when they reach England under a charge of mutiny. The belief of these ignorant seamen that the Lord of the Universe is vitally interested in their food was common enough once.

BRITISH LIMIT U. S. RUM HUNT

London, July 19 (I.N.S.).—Great Britain will not permit its agreement with the United States for the checking of rum smuggling to interfere with British trade, the Foreign Office announced today, in reply to murmurs of disapproval from commercial and shipping circles concerning the proposed new concessions to the United States.

The Foreign Office said although it is proposed to permit American revenue cutters to enter British territorial waters in the Bahamas to search for rum-runners, precautions will be taken to protect British rights. Revenue cutters will be allowed to enter the Bahama Islands only after their commanders have called at Bimini for the consent of the British naval authorities to make a search, it was stated.

The American prohibition officials today laid considerable information regarding violations of British shipping and customs laws, with regard to rum running, before the British authorities.

ARREST COP AFTER ROW

A near riot in which police of the Back Bay station were called to preserve order, resulted in the arrest of a policeman of Traffic Division No. 21, on the charge of being drunk. He is held for causing a disturbance in Donovan's restaurant, Massachusetts avenue.

The name of the officer is being withheld. He was taken out of the place by Sergeant Orrington Waugh, Station 16, and was locked up. A doctor, called by officials at the station, examined the officer and declared him under the influence of liquor.

Off duty, in civilian clothes, the policeman came into the restaurant to get something to eat. The food served to him by the management was not what he wanted. He complained. Efforts on the part of the manager to please him, proved unavailing.

Words led to blows. The policeman showed his badge, announced his identity and threatened to clear everybody out. They tried to quiet him and then the fight started.

Shopping with Priscilla Price

DEAREST ANNE:

It has been frightfully hot these past few days, and all the resorts are crowded; consequently everyone needs warm weather clothes. Now is the time to buy. Never have I seen more adorable frocks at such reasonable prices. One or two extra ones just make your wardrobe complete, and do go and see some of these little dresses I am going to tell you about this week.

Lovely as France Herself

—are the dainty French Summer dresses which have just arrived at Hovey's and are on sale in their Misses' Dress Shop, 3rd floor, as well as in their Women's Dress Shop, 2nd floor. And the prices, never have I seen more charming frocks at so little. It is possible on account of the decline of the French franc. Everyone beautifully hand made in Paris and the daintiest thing imaginable, and absolutely the latest styles.

At $8.75 are two attractive styles in cotton crepe, wonderfully stencilled in gorgeous colors, come with white, tan or gray background. Like 3rd model in sketch. Or with long line pleated skirt, cap sleeves and novelty collar. Wonderful value.

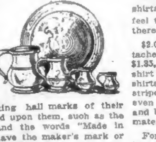
For $10.75 are three styles in fine linen and one model in striped silk voile as well as French striped flannels. Stunning. One model like figure on left of sketch. Beautiful hand embroidery. Dresses that show really good taste and distinctiveness. I can't see how they sell them for so little.

At $16.75 are adorable French voiles with shirred apron fronts, embroidered motifs at waistline, plain back and pin tucked collars. Exquisite on a Summer evening or for a bridge party or tea. Heavenly colors, all dainty pastel shades. Also at $16.75 are ombre effect knitted rayon sports dresses, boxed pleated skirts, roll collars, long sleeves, tailored cuffs. And at $16.75 is the middle sketch made in dainty silk embroidered voile with bolero effect. All these frocks come in sizes 16 to 44.

Do go into Hovey's and take advantage of this wonderful sale of French dresses.

The Beauty of Antique Pewter

is most appealing. If you love antique pewter I wish you would go into Filene's and see the wonderful array that has just arrived in their gift shop on the street floor. It is absolutely genuine, and every piece being over 100 years old it passed the customs experts as antiques. The pieces are simply lovely, and each and every one would be a valued addition to the collection of a lover of this fine old ware. All of this is Old English pewter, and many pieces have most interesting hall marks of their genuineness stamped upon them, such as the rose and crown, and the words "Made in London." Others have the maker's mark or initials, many with a cock and lion rampant.



As for the mugs, tankards, porringers, plates, salts, tobacco jars and candlesticks, they are beautifully shaped and many engraved by hand. Some of this antique pewter has the interesting name of the tavern on it, such as the "Horseshoe and Wheat-Sheaf Inn," or the "Wrester's Tavern, Highgate," as well as the original owners, for instance, "Lord Clive, Duke St., Manchester."

This is really a remarkable collection, and it is all most reasonably priced. Mugs come from $3.50 up, and there are the loveliest porringers at $7.50. A tobacco jar with fox head is $7.50, too. Most attractive and unusual. A very popular wedding present and gift to one who knows. Adds so to one's house. The dull gleam of old pewter brings warmth and hominess to the old-fashioned mantel in the dining room, and is shown forth to the best advantage with white panelling behind it. Don't miss this remarkable collection of antique pewter at Filene's.

Miss Gertrude Greenfield snapped sailing on the S. S. Leviathan to visit every large city in Europe. She is well known as one of our smartest dressed young women.

I got a half dozen for the boys and I have never seen them so pleased. They are the sportiest things, and among them are conservative colorings for the well dressed more retiring man.

Holeproof socks for men at Talbot's are really remarkable values.

P.S. I must tell you about "Saniflor," which I found at Bird's, 5 West St. Saniflor or Healthy Flowers makes a room absolutely free from all offensive odors. Little bottle of French liquid comes with delicate flowers to take place of cork. They have the property of slowly evaporating the liquid in which the stem is immersed, and filling the room with antiseptic and sweetly perfumed odor, $1.00. Wonderful for purifying and disinfecting, keeps moths from furs and keeps away mosquitoes.

Do try a bottle for your bathroom or nursery. Saniflor at Bird's for $1.00. It is marvelous! I have had a bottle two months in my apartment and Oh, the joy of never having a disagreeable odor in any room!

'TROUT FUR' IS NEW MODE IN PARIS

Fashion Also Decrees Gold and Silver Cloth for Evening Gowns

By C. F. BERTELLI.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, July 19.—The mania for elaborate fashions in order to counteract the recent mode, which it is complained was too cheap and made all women look alike, has gone so far as to bring out "individual furs."

Thus "trout fur" has appeared in Paris, worn as an evening wrap, by Mrs. Jean Nash, at a fashionable dinner dance in the Cafe Madrid in the Bois Du Boulogne.

Trout fur is obtained by close shaving the skins of young goats. The neat surface thus achieved is then treated by painting on a design which looks exactly like trout skin and retains a peculiar sheen, particularly effective at night.

The same treatment is applied to shaved goat skin to make it appear like giraffe skin.

SILVER AND GOLD GOWNS

Silver and gold figure prominently in the new fashions.

Although the collections of new models will not be shown to buyers until the end of the month, it already is possible to state with certainty that gold and silver cloth will be the feature of the new evening gowns.

Simultaneously, metal threads, interwoven with wool, will be fashionable in material for daytime frocks.

Rodier, the well-known Paris manufacturer, whose cloths have been worn by smart women the last 3 years, will produce this season gray wool and silver and beige with gold thread cloths which most of the best houses here have adopted for Fall and Winter models.

BROCADES COMING BACK

In line with the richer and more ornate styles movement, the novel materials are a modest attempt to educate the public taste toward a return to the ancient gorgeousness of brocades.

Gold and silver, in fact, will predominate for the next several months. Even shoes now sport a silver and gold strap above the instep, often embellished with tassels and even tiny bells drooping sideways.

INDIVIDUALITY THE FAD.

The Maison Max, which specializes in individual furs, applies a color design to suit the wearer in the same way as all well known fashion houses now make perfumes for each individual client, according to her particular style of dresses, complexion and the color of her hair.

The choice of one's styles for winter will by no means be an easy matter. All experts agree it will call for unlimited time and an unlimited purse.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Governor and Mrs. Fuller Prominent in Rye Beach Festivities

THE FIRST LADY OF THE Commonwealth was her customary handsome and beautifully adorned self when she and His Excellency the Governor danced at the Farragut Hotel's weekly hop.

MASSACHUSETTS' official family occupied one of Rye Beach's lovely estates, a wide-flung brick and white clapboard mansion breathing warm hospitality and overlooking miles of blue Atlantic.

MRS. FULLER at the hop wore a richly colored crepe, and, for jewels, some of her matchless pearls. Mrs. Oscar Halsey, the Governor's sister, was of the group, her gown a rose effect. Madame Fuller, the Governor's mother, is frequently a Hotel Farragut visitor.

SHE IS LIKEWISE a Summer resident of aristocratic Rye Beach—where large estates and comfortable country-seashore homes cluster about the two famous hotels—the old Farragut and the newer luxuriously appointed Stoneleigh Manor, its near neighbor.

BOSTONIANS WHO MAKE the Hotel Somerset their Winter home frequent the Farragut. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Merriam Pratt spent the last week-end there. Mr. and Mrs. George E. Leghorn are there for a month or more.

THE MANOR HOUSES in luxurious apartments Mr. and Mrs. Elmer A. Lord, Mrs. Melville L. Cobb, Mrs. George E. Carter, Mrs. David Loring, Mrs. Charles B. Cowles and Mrs. Charles E. West, among others of the Boston set.

OTHER GUESTS at what is one of New England's most beautiful spots include Miss Eugenie Edmunds and the L. Ray Carters of St. Louis, Mr. and Mrs. William Wood, Jr., of Gotham, Mr. and Mrs. S. Richard Carlisle and Dr. Paul Carlisle of Springfield, and Mrs. William Lyons of Morristown, N. J.

COHASSET'S SMART SET gathers every Tuesday at 10:30 in the morning to hear the Rev. Frederick J. Gauld hold forth on current events. To be told what's going on in this interesting world of ours is the popular summertime gesture toward life's more serious aspects.

SMARTDOM THEREABOUTS lends its patronage and presence at these talks—Mrs. Alanson Bigelow, Jr., Mrs. William H. Brown, and Mrs. Arthur W. Moors are a trio of sponsors, from a list as long as it is imposing.

THE HUGH BANCROFT Summer estate at Cohasset, called "Deer Hill," with its lovely newly completed walled garden, is a show place of the pretty little town. Mrs. Bancroft has devoted much time to its building, creating each detail with loving care and vast enthusiasm.

WITH THE GENEROSITY for which she's continually noted, Mrs. T. Jefferson Coolidge lends her home at Coolidge Point for tomorrow's sale when the Handicraft Shop of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union benefits.

MRS. ALVAN T. FULLER
First lady of the Commonwealth is stopping at Rye Beach this Summer.

SALES AND SUCH philanthropic occasions at Mrs. Coolidge's magnificent North Shore estate always serve a double purpose, for quite aside from the good will involved, visitors coming to purchase may see this magnificent domain, with its velvet lawns going down to the water, its broad terrace and its gardens in full bloom.

A ROUND DOZEN of names appear on the sponsor list: Mesdames J. Templeman Coolidge, Carl P. Dennett, Arthur Little, William A. Paine, A. Wilder Pollard, William Glover Reuter, Robert Gould Shaw, 2d, Rodman Paul Snelling, Alvin F. Sortwell, Henry G. Vaughan, Roger S. Warner and S. Burt Wolbach.

T SUFFERN TAILER'S gala celebration devoted to golf and its devotees was a much-paragraphed Newport festivity when all and sundry, the elite and the year-round residential set of Newport were bidden to the Ocean golf links.

MR. TAILER thus dedicated his Well of Fame, inviting as special attraction Richard A. Jones, semi-finalist in last year's national amateur tournament. Mr. Jones is Mr. Tailer's guest at Honeysuckle Lodge for a week or so, and is doing several rounds of the Ocean links.

FRANK W. TRACY is a guest at the Bigwin Inn on Bigwig Island, one of the many dotting the Lake of Bays up in Ontario. Miss Marian Greene, Miss Winifred Thorpe and George W. Bailey are at Wentworth-by-the-Sea.

TEMPLE GIRL ADVISOR QUITS

Rev. Pinette Allen, girl counsellor of Tremont Temple, has resigned. For many years, she directed thousands of girls with helpful advise and careful direction, in making a life for themselves.

Mrs. Allen believes that a girl today needs not only the care and counsel of a mother, but a woman friend older than herself who can understand the ways of the modern girl and is capable to giving her helpful advice in an interesting way.

She believes that the modern girl is far in advance of the girls of the older generation and amid changed conditions that are trying in their attractions. Her influence among thousands of girls was praised at the recent reception given to her, upon leaving her present position.

EXCEED QUOTA FOR PALESTINE

A financial report issued by official headquarters of the United Palestine Appeal states that the original quota of $5,000,000 has been exceeded by more than $260,000.

Funds for the Jewish National Home now in the process of reconstruction in Palestine were contributed by co-operating organizations which included the Zionist Organization of America, Keren Hayesod, National Hadassah, Keren Hayesod Women's League, Mizrachi Organization of America, Order Sons of Zion and Zeirei-Zion.

Northern New England Jewry, including Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine raised $275,000. Of this amount $173,067.27 has been given in cash. Additional subscriptions of $10,000 are expected from Jews of these States by next September.

WEYMOUTH BUNGALOW DAMAGED BY FIRE

Fire in the bungalow on Westminster street, South Weymouth, owned by Wingate & Brown and occupied by Mrs. E. L. Sands, burned the greater portion of the interior of the house and practically all of Mrs. Sands' furniture and personal effects. Mrs. Sands, who was preparing to move, had been burning rubbish in a fireplace, but the actual cause of the fire has not been determined.

GORGEOUS BALL TO BE GIVEN BY 'PEARL' HAGGIN

"Swankiest" Function of Season at Villa Rosa, Newport, Aug. 7

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER.

Newport, R. I., July 19 (Universal)—That gorgeously pink residence, "Villa Rosa," on Bellevue avenue, will form the setting on the night of August 7 of what will probably be the "swankiest" ball of the Newport season.

A long list of celebrated hostesses will give dinners before the party, which is being arranged by Mrs. James B. Haggin, who will always be "Pearl" to Newport society.

WILL BE EXCLUSIVE.

Never in the many years she has been classed as a Newporter has Pearl Haggin smiled upon the social detrimentals, and it is hardly possible she will let down the bars at this late date.

All the most ponderous of the social heavyweights will grace her party at "Villa Rosa," and I would politely suggest to those newcomers who stand but little chance of securing a card to Pearl's soiree, that they seriously consider spending the evening of August 7 at Easton's beach.

AN ALTERNATIVE

The roller-coaster at that plebeian spot is most diverting—the merry-go-round, noisy but exhilarating, and the orchestra in the public dance hall, where one pays the large sum of five cents per dance, may not be as high-priced as the one that will furnish the tinkling tunes for the "Charleston" at Mrs. Haggin's, but at least it is an orchestra.

Pearl's neighbors, the Berwinds—"Ned" and sister Julia—are also planning a ball to be given at the "Elms," the only villa in Newport that eclipses in architectural splendor the Dowager Mrs. Vanderbilt's "Breakers."

No house in Newport is run in a more lavish manner than the "Elms," and whenever they give a large—for them—party, "Ned" and Julia have the hallways of the "Elms" lined with flunkies.

SOCIALISTS PUT FULL TICKET IN FIELD

Walter S. Hutchins of Greenfield Nominated for Governor

The Socialist party held its State convention at 21 Essex street, in Boston, and nominated a full State ticket, most of the candidates being members of trades unions.

The candidate nominated for Governor, Walter S. Hutchins of Greenfield, is a member of the Brothrhood of Locomotive Engineers and chairman of the Massachusetts Legislative Board of that organization.

The candidate named for Lieutenant-Governor was Dennis F. Reagan; for Secretary of State, Edith Williams; treasurer, Albert Sprague Coolidge, formerly one of the electors for LaFollette. Leon Arkin was nominated for Auditor; John Weaver Sherman for attorney-general, and Alfred Baker Lewis for United States Senator.

SCORES CAPITALISTS.

The platform adopted states "The trouble with our State as with our Nation, is that it is not truly ours. It is controlled by industrial capitalists and financiers rather than the people of the State."

It asserts that both the Democrats and the Republicans get their campaign funds from the wealthy and will therefore always serve the interests of the wealthy class.

Among the planks adopted was a demand for unemployment insurance and a denunciation of the system of guaranteeing dividends to public utilities, such as the Boston Elevated Railroad. The party favored public ownership of public utilities in place of guaranteeing dividends. Ratification of the child labor amendment to the Federal constitution and old age pensions were also favored.

PROBE SACCO CASE.

A resolution adopted called upon the Governor to appoint an impartial commission to investigate and report upon the Sacco-Vanzetti case. The convention also declared its sympathy with the striking British miners, denounced the pending bills for the registration and finger-printing of aliens, and declared that despite the Communist leadership of Passaic strikers, they deserved the sympathy and support of labor.

Old Mother Earth Shocked by 282 Catastrophes

Paris, July 19 (Universal).—Mother earth balked at "safety first" measures and permitted 282 catastrophes last year, according to figures published by the International Red Cross Society.

Europe suffered most and Africa least, in the review of the year's earthquakes, tornados, floods, droughts, volcanos and tidal waves.

Considering its small area, Japan led the world with five earthquakes, four floods, six tempests and one drought.

94-YEAR-OLD RESIDENT OF CAMBRIDGE DIES

Mrs. Alice M. Doherty, 94, one of the oldest residents of Cambridge, is dead at her late home, No. 5 Sparks street. She was an aunt of Commander Francis J. O'Reilley of the Charles Beck Post, G. A. R., and the grandmother of George "Kid" Lee, Worcester boxer.

M'CORMACK TO RUN AS 'WET'

State Senator John W. McCormack has announced his candidacy for the Democratic congressional nomination in the 12th district. He said:

"In the matter of prohibition, I stand squarely with the wets, favoring not only a modification of the Volstead Act to permit the sale of light wines and beer but also further modification making more readily available brandy and other strong stimulants, at moderate cost, to those who require them for medicinal purposes."

Senator McCormack is an advocate of legislation to strengthen the military forces and particularly to increase the air service. He is opposed to the entry of the United States into the League of Nations and favors withdrawal from the World Court.

CHILD IS KILLED BY TRAIN

Fitchburg, July 19.—Playing on the railroad track cost two-year-old Mary Frances Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvah L. Brown of Water street, her life here today.

Accompanied by her brothers, William, five, and Robert, three years old, the little girl was playing on the New Haven tracks in the rear of the Brown home. The boys saw the train approaching in time to escape, but the little girl could not get out of danger fast enough. The little body was tossed more than twenty feet in the air and the child died almost instantly. Engineer H. M. Smith was in charge of the train.

Norway's King Honors Crew of Norge

Oslo, Norway, July 19 (A.P.)—King Haakon and Queen Maud gave a dinner party in honor of Roald Amundsen and those of his comrades who have returned to Norway since their recent flight across the North Pole from Spitzbergen to Alaska in the dirigible Norge. The King paid a high compliment to Commander Nobile of the Norge and Lincoln Ellsworth, the American, who participated in the flight.

GERMANS HATE KAISER, SAYS HAWKINS

Jordon Marsh Company Director Brings Political Picture on Return From Europe

The former Kaiser is heartily disliked in Germany. Teutonic throne are in total eclipse owing to the deep-seated animosity the German people have developed against him personally.

The aversion to William Hohenzollern is apparent in all walks of life, high and low.

"We could forgive his running away during the debacle at the time of the Armistice, but not for remarrying in so short a time after the demise of our dear Kaiserine," say one and all.

This is the political picture of the German republic brought to Boston by W. A. Hawkins, director of the Jordan Marsh Comany, who landed at East Boston from the Laconia this morning concluding a three months' trip abroad.

REVERENCE IS GONE.

"I talked with many Germans and found them unanimous in declaring the former reverence for the Kaiser gone," Mr. Hawkins said. "The Kaiserine was extremely popular with her subjects, more than popular, shew as personally well liked and it is apparent that the War Lord's remarriage set the tide of popular feeling against him."

As to internal conditions in the German Republic, the Boston merchant found them promisingly stabilized with unemployment, however, an acute problem. He added that the German people appear to ber well satisfied with their Republic under Hindenberg.

Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins toured most of the Continent during the three months they were abroad, visiting the Jordan Marsh headquarters at London, Paris, Florence, Vienna, Berlin, Frankfort and Brussells, as well as Rome and Carlsbad, at which city years ago Mr. Hawkins was proprietor of a china and glass manufactory.

Well acquainted with Europe from twenty-five years' experience as a business man and traveler, Mr. Hawkins professed himself astonished with the spread of the English language there.

"It is the universal tongue and is becoming more so every year. Even bootblacks and bellboys and clerks in the stores talk English fluently.

CONDITIONS IN ITALY.

He was particularly impressed with the condition of Italy, having visited Rome to be presented to the Pope.

"Of the foreign countries Italy has made greatest strides toward getting on to her feet. Mussolini gets all the credit."

"While in Rome I had the honor of being presented to the Pope. Monsignor Kiely of the North American College courteously made arrangements. The ceremony is one never to be forgotten. One is met by the Swiss Guard in resplendent uniforms and conducted to the Throne Room. The Pope makes a wonderful impression on everyone coming into contact with him. I felt highly honored to see the Holy Father and clasp his hand." Pius II. blessed a number of religious articles Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins had with them for members of the Jordan Marsh Company Quarter Century Club.

The American going to Europe with the idea that living is inexpensive is due for disillusionment, Mr. Hawkins says. Nowhere, but in Brussels is living anywhere near cheap.

Business in general in Europe shows signs of stabilization, according to the Boston man.

OTHER PASSENGERS.

On the Laconia were also Professor D. F. Tovey with Mrs. Tovey. He is a professor of music at the University of Edinboro. He is to entrain for Santa Barbara, Calif.

In commenting on effects of jazz music, Tovey described it as a passing fancy and "an eccentricity of music" that will go the way of all fads.

Among the other passengers disembarking at this port were Edmund Descenes, comptroller of the Central Vermont Railroad, Miss Helen M. Dushane, Edith L. Haskell, Elizabeth oring, Berl C. Waterbury and Lady Elena Seely-Scudder with Seely-Scudder and their baby daughter.

After discharging her passengers here the Laconia sailed for New York.

VERMONT YOUTH HELD FOR AUTO FATALITY

Montpelier, Vt., July 19 (A.P.).—Frederick Seguin, son of an oil distributor here, was released under $5,000 bail, charged with having caused an accident that resulted in a fatality. The charge was brought against him in Newport, Vt., as the result of the death of Alex Hurry who was riding in Mr. Seguin's automobile. The car skidded near Westfield, crushing Mr. Hurry to death. Seguin denies having been intoxicated.

200 STRIKERS ARE ARRESTED

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—Two hundred striking garment workers were arrested today, charged with disorderly conduct. Nearly one hundred patrolmen invaded the district bounded by Twenty-Fifth and Thirty-ninth streets and Fifth and Eighth avenues and herded the strikers into patrols.

Some of the arrests were made in an employment office. Strikers said this office has been used by them for years as a place in which to wait for employers to come to hire them.

POLICE GUARD MILK PLANT

Policemen were placed on guard at the Childs Brothers, milk dealers, plant in Waltham today because the company heads are fearful, they said, strikers from the Alden Brothers Company in Boston would try to induce the Waltham workers to join the fight.

The guards were placed about the plant with orders to keep all intruders away.

$100,000,000 SOUGHT TO END BRITISH COAL STRIKE

London, July 19 (A.P.).—A scheme for borrowing $100,000,000 to enable British coal mines to reopen at the old wage scale and end the coal strike was being projected today by ecclesiastics striving to end the industrial tie-up.

A delegation of ecclesiastics, under the Bishop of Titchfield, will meet Premier Baldwin tonight. Convinced the government will not renew its subsidy to the coal industry, the churchmen plan to ask the Premier to lend his support to an effort to raise the loan.

BISHOP ANDERSON TALKS TO MAINE METHODISTS

Old Orchard, Me., July 19.—The challenge of Bishop William F. Anderson of Boston to the Methodists of hte Pine Tree State, in his sermon at the opening session of the Portland district Methodist Episcopal camp meetings, held in the amphitheatre, was to be brave, valiant and strong.

"We are here," he said, "to work to save the world, not to have an easy time."

The Taxi Dancer by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

Thrilling Story of Night Life and Night Clubs; A Mad Whirl of Adventure and Pleasure

George Ransom had seized her as they danced and kissed her. Joslyn thought it rather stupid.

This is the story of a girl who was told by a seer that there was poison in her blood, that the women in her family ran to wildness or worse. She makes up her mind to go to New York and to beat the bright lights at their own game. Follow her career. It is of value to other girls.

By ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

CHAPTER I.

UNDER the steady, brooding gaze of the aged negress the white girl sat straight and defiant. Between them, on a rickety table, stood a battered cup, the inside flecked with a grotesque pattern of tea grounds gathered at the bottom in a dank, irregular sediment.

"Whutfo' you comes to me to read dis yere fo'tune?"

Black Minnie Gumbo's voice was heavy with challenge and authority. Gigantically fat, in a cotton wrapper, she filled her old log cabin with a cloud of sullen disapproval.

In some inner recess of her heart Joslyn Poe was nervously chilled. All of the black people, and many of the whites, believed unreservedly in the voodoo powers of the taciturn wench. From a young woman Minnie Gumbo had been a creature apart from both races, living on tribute born of fear and awe in the breasts of the blacks.

Now, alone with the great ebony creature in the ramshackle cabin in the woods that skirted the sterile Poe farm land, Joslyn had to grip herself, secretly, to brave the smoldering displeasure that charged the surrounding air.

"I've told you why I want my fortune read," she said, levelly. "I'm leaving home—the county—I'm going to earn my own living in New York. I want to know what's in my future."

"Huh! You bin to Baltimo' to school an' you got no mo' sense 'an to come traipsin' 'roun' lisseenin' to de foolishment of dis ol' niggah. You oughta be ashamed, Mis' Joslyn . . . foolishment."

"I'm bound to know what you see in those tea leaves," the girl persisted, stubbornly.

The eyes of Minnie Gumbo were yellowish with reluctance.

"You boun' to know? All right. You craves de truf an' you gits it. Whut I reads is you go 'long back to yo' pappy an' mammy an' fo'gits all 'bout dis yere leavin' home. City ain't fo' purty gals."

Home! The once noble, great house with its leaking roof and broken windows . . . the ghastly tragedy of maintaining gentility without modern plumbing!

"You bettah stay home an' marry dis yere Mistah Gawge Ransom," Minnie Gumbo's words rumbled, like thunder on the horizon.

Suddenly the straining thing in Joslyn's bosom sprang vividly alive. A bird beating its wings frantically against the bars of its cage. The proud head with its lustrous black bob was poised, thrown backward, in the uprushing rebellion that suffused the whole symmetry of her slender body with wave after wave of uncontrollable heat. Her eyes, dark and wide, flashed passionately.

"I won't! I won't! I won't!" Her voice glowed, vibrated. Her words rushed pell-mell; not to Minnie Gumbo, specifically, but to the world, to Life itself. "I won't be trapped! George Ransom! His

GOODE SUFFERS BREAKDOWN

Thomas F. Goode

Deputy Police Superintendent Thomas F. Goode has suffered a nervous breakdown and is under the care of physicians at his Summer home at Nantasket, it was learned today.

The deputy's breakdown is said to have been caused by overwork as head of the traffic division, in connection with which he has worked night and day. In addition to his other duties he was frequently called on to make speeches throughout the State on traffic control. Although urged to ease up and obtain assistants, he continued to throw himself into the work.

As Deputy Goode requires absolute quiet and rest, the police department has requested his many friends to refrain from telephoning or visiting his home.

WHITE HOUSE FAMILY TO SPLIT

Girl With 94 Love Letters Seeks Thaw

1ST DURING COOLIDGE REGIME

President Goes to Plymouth, Vt., on Private Business; Wife to Entertain Mother

White Pines Camp, N. Y., July 19 (I.N.S.).—The White House family in all probability will be split up this week for the first time since Mr. Coolidge became President.

The Executive is expected to journey to his birthplace at Plymouth, Vt, the first part of the week, possibly tomorrow, and remain there a few days.

Mrs. Coolidge, however, it is understood, will stay at White Pines camp and entertain her mother, Mrs. Elmira Goodhue of Northampton, Mass., and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns of Boston.

This, at least, is the present schedule.

The President is anxious to get back to Plymouth for a few days.

FAMILY MATTERS.

It is there that in the past two years he has buried his father and his younger son. He wants to assure himself that everything is in order, that his father's estate is being brought to a close. There are a number of family matters that may need his attention.

Mrs. Coolidge is anxious to see her mother, also the confinement of this year's Summer White House is said to be beginning to pall on her somewhat and she would like to do a little entertaining and see some of her friends.

No definite date has yet been set for Mr. Coolidge's departure, but attaches expect it will be Tuesday or Wednesday. Neither has it been decided whether he will motor or go by rail.

The New York Central has offered an attractive special at no extra cost, and the trip may be made that way in the interests of comfort.

SECRETARY DAVIS EXPECTED.

The second official visitor to White Pines camp is expected this afternoon. Secretary of War Dwight Davis, who is inspecting the training camp at Plattsburg, N. Y., probably will arrive here late today.

There are no special matters before the War Department requiring Presidential attention. There is some speculation around the Summer White House, however, about the possibility of a discussion between Davis and the President of arsenal conditions, as a result of the Lake Denmark, N. J., explosion a week ago.

Charges have been made that antiquated methods of storing munitions place those responsible for their care in undue danger, while several localities neighboring on arsenals and proving grounds have requested their removal.

HUNT GOLD IN NOVA SCOTIA

Spanish Privateer Buried Treasure in Lake, Says U. S. Army Man

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—Lured by the time-yellowed records of a Spanish privateer, Major R. A. Logan, manager of the mapping department of the Fairchild Aerial Survey, Inc., today was on the way to Nova Scotia to hunt for treasure worth, perhaps, $2,000,000.

Maj. Logan, who is a member of three geographical societies and an aviator, left New York by rail on a five months' leave of absence. He has bought 100 acres in Nova Scotia on which he hopes to find gold from a French pay ship which never reached its destination.

"Some of my friends think I'm talking through my hat," he said, "and they may be right. It's a fifty-fifty gamble at the best, but if I win, it's $100,000 at the least, and some have estimated the loot I'm after as high as $2,000,000."

Maj. Logan was born at Musquodoboit, N. S., and spent his boyhood there. He heard a legend of a French ship laden with coin and gold and silver plate which was forced into a small harbor near Halifax in 1700. The treasure was unloaded, carried inland, and sunk in a lake.

After he came to New York Maj. Logan found in a private library the records fo a Spanish—not British—privateer, in which was a parallel tale of a Nova Scotia treasure. The records told of a French sailor whose life was spared by the crew of the Spanish privateer when it seized a French prize. The sailor revealed the secret of the hidden gold.

COURTSHIP BY MAIL, SHE SAYS

Los Angeles Beauty and 'Ma' Are Broke After Search in Philadelphia for Harry

Winchester, Va., July 19 (Universal).—Pretty Miss Forrest Walsh, 19, of Los Angeles, tried in vain today to locate Harry K. Thaw of Pittsburgh, who, she says, promised to marry her in a cross-country U. S. mail courtship.

"Mr. Thaw promised to marry me. That is why mother and I came all the way across the country," she said.

"We were supposed to meet him here. I believe he will show up soon."

Miss Walsh, who motored from Los Angeles in a small automobile with her mother, was located at a gasoline filling station with a tourists' camp attached, where they are staying.

ADMITS SHE'S "BROKE."

She admitted they were "flat broke." When the litle auto chugged into the camp three days ago they had spent all but $5 of their fund for the journey.

"My mother and I visited Thaw's big estate here today, just as we did yesterday and the day before, but the man in charge repeatedly tells us he does not know where Thaw is stopping," said Miss Walsh.

"Now our money is gone and we don't know which way to turn. Strangers have been good to us, however. I guess we will have to appeal to the Salvation Army for help until we can make other arrangements."

The girl, who is strikingly beautiful, declared her plans for the future were decidedly uncertain. She expressed the determination to camp out on the tourists' lot, however, until Thaw puts in an appearance.

HAS COPIES OF LETTERS.

"I have copies of ninety-four letters Mr. Thaw wrote to me," Miss Walsh said. She had returned the originals to him, she explained, sending them by registered mail.

"And I have Thaw's receipts for them," she added.

Both the mother and daughter, who visited the police here to explain their plight, said that Thaw and Miss Walsh had never met, but that they had exchanged letters ever since Thaw won his sanity suit in Philadelphia. A letter of congratulation sent Thaw, started the correspondence, they asserted.

It was upon Thaw's own suggestion, they claimed, that they started the automobile trip across the country to meet him at his country estate near here.

FIVE SHOCKED; THREE DYING

Passaic, N. J., July 19 (A.P.).—Five men were brought to Passaic General Hospital today in a serious condition from electric shock received at the plant of the Standard Textile Products Company, in Clifton, where they were employed.

Physicians said that a hasty examination of the patients indicated that three might not recover.

Harry Thaw Hero as He Rescues Drowning Man

Long Beach, N. Y., July 19 (I.N.S.).—Harry K. Thaw was hailed as a hero today, following the discovery he was the mysterious man who saved a bather from drowning here yesterday.

Two swimmers were hauled out of the water when they yelled for help. Thaw was swimming near shore and he and a lifeguard reached the two men at the same time. Each took one of the drowning men to shore.

When questioned about it Thaw admitted he "had a hand in the rescue," but he made light of his feat.

FIRST CHIEF OF HULL IS DEAD

Mr. Smith, who was operated on a year ago, was sixty-nine years old and had been a resident of Hull for many years. He was a director of the Hingham Trust Company. He is survived by two sons, John F. and D. Alfred Smith, and a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Murphy, all of Hull.

PRESERVING THOSE VITAMINES

Vegetables we know are full of those valuable vital vitamines. Not one will be lost if the following directions are observed in cooking the vegetables.

Wash them thoroughly so that the cooking water can be used for soup as it will contain some of the valuable mineral contents. Use boiling water with a small amount of salt. After washing leafy green vegetables, enough water will cling to them to provide sufficient liquid in which to boil them if put over a slow fire. Do not add any more water and don't use soda. Don't cover strong flavored vegetables while cooking. If you will lower the kitchen window from the top and keep the kitchen door shut while cooking cabbage, this disagreeable odor will be carried outdoors by the draft. The water in which vegetables are cooked should be saved and used for soups and gravies. Twenty minutes in boiling water is long enough to thoroughly cook young cabbage. A common crime against the cabbage is to overcook it. Vegetables are best steamed whenever possible.

FOR THE SUNDAY PICNIC BASKET

A party of girls are going to the beach next Sunday and ask for luncheon suggestions. You cannot go wrong with a foundation of devilled eggs.

DEVILLED EGGS.

Boil your eggs 20 minutes. Cook, cut in halves, remove and mash the yokes. Season with butter, pepper, salt and a touch of dry mustard. Refill the egg and fasten the halves together with wooden toothpicks. Wrap each in wax paper. If you can purloin a bit of cold ham or other meat or green pepper from the family ice box, this can be chopped and added to the egg-filling.

For the "best-ever" sandwiches, run equal parts of chicken or boiled ham through the chopper together with mayonnaise and spread on thin bread. Salad rolls are popular picnic companions, but I'd suggest carrying the fillings in a preserve jar and the lettuce in wax paper and fill the rolls on the grounds. Get the long pointed rolls, cut a lid off the top and scoop out the soft centre. The fillings can be chicken, salmon, tuna or crabmeat mixed with a little chopped green pepper or celery and mayonnaise.

To make the sandwich on the spot, put a lettuce leaf in each roll, add a couple of spoonsful of the filling and then put on the salad's hat. With a few whole tomatoes or cucumbers, some sweet pickles, fruit and small cakes, I think "a pleasant time will be had by all."

A handy funnel for filing salt and pepper boxes, etc., can be quickly made by using the corner of an envelope, cutting off a small part of the tip.

Never a day goes by that I don't get an S. O. S. for something new in a sandwich filling so please all of you who have broadcast this need clip the following recipe for a sandwich filling that I'm sure you will find intriguing and appetizing. The fact that the mixture is flavored with Vegex—that strength-building, health-building vegetable food—means that the sandwiches are rich in Vitamine B.

MARTHA'S FAVORITE SANDWICH FILLING

Add to one small bottle of stuffed olives chopped fine, an equal amount of cream cheese. Mix thoroughly together a half teaspoon of Vegex and two teaspoons of butter. Add this to the first mixture with one-quarter cup of broken walnut meats. Spread thin slices of whole wheat bread with Vegex butter (made by mixing one-half teaspoon of Vegex with two teaspoons of butter) and then spread with this delicious cheese, olive and nut mixture.

DEVILLED SALMON—Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan. Add a minced onion and a minced green pepper and cook five minutes. Stir in a cupful of highly seasoned tomato sauce or condensed tomato soup, cook two minutes more, then add a cupful of flaked salmon or tuna, half a teaspoonful of salt, an eighth teaspoonful of pepper and a few grains of cayenne pepper. Let cook up and serve on hot buttered toast. Excellent for the chafing dish or grill supper.

An excellent antidote for too much salt is to stir a little coarse brown sugar into gravy, vegetables or soup and the dish will become palatable again.

When food is made too salty, it may also be counteracted by adding a tablespoon each of vinegar and sugar.

BATHING THE BABY

Very frequently I receive requests from young mothers on the best methods of bathing the baby.

One of them writes that she had been depending on a neighbor coming in each day for two months to perform this office, and wonders what she would ever do if the neighbor lady skipped a day.

This daily bath ceremony really isn't a bit terrifying. In fact, after the first time or two, it will be a real game for mother and baby. Now for directions:

First, the room should be at least 75 degrees F. and screened from draughts. Test the temperature of the water by a bath thermometer and not by guess work or your elbow. If possible, have the baby's tub securely placed on slats across the bath tub. A table holding a pillow on which the baby can be placed, wrapped in a warm towel, is preferable to holding the baby on your lap. A pure castile soap is ideal for the bath.

Gently wash the baby's face and sponge his little head all over. Pat dry. Next, the tiny hands are washed with soap and rinsed. Then make a generous lather of the castile soap for chest, back, arms and the rest of the body. Supporting the baby's head and shoulders with your left rinse him thoroughly with the right. Lift him out on a fresh warm towel on the pillow and pat (not rub), until dry. Wherever two skin surfaces rub together, sprinkle a bit of comfort powder.

A soap bath is given for cleanliness only, and is only necessary about twice a week. The other baths may be just a dipping into warm water and drying.

The tub bath should be given him before the long sleep at night. An olive oil or dry hand rub should be given before the mid-forenoon meal and should be kept up for at least two years.

If you have any special baby problems perhaps I can help you. Won't you write to me? My middle name is Assistance.

STRENUOUS WEEK AHEAD FOR RED SOX OUTFIT

Browns Follow Windy City Ball Tossers

THE Red Sox, beginning to believe in their own destiny, conclude their stand against the West this week. They engage the surprised Chisox today and tomorrow and then wind up the week with the St. Louis Browns. The battle with the Sisler entry means something now to the red-legged natives.

They have collected the notion that they can escape from the cellar and six games with the Brownies gives them a glorious opportunity to edge up. The Sox have been taking their successive lickings with less and less grace. They lost three out of five games to Detroit but they gave the Tigers a fight all the way.

Nick Flatley

They won one from the Indians but they played hard baseball while losing a couple and sent Tris Speaker away with a lot of respect for their ability. The [illegible] double defeat of the Chicago contenders is still fresh in the minds of the populace.

There are double-headers with the staggering Browns on Wednesday and Saturday with single sessions sandwiched in between. Just now the Fenway athletes are a [illegible] the eight games away from the next step up the [illegible] but when a team gets fighting and [illegible] faith that sort of gap isn't considered at all.

THE American League race, which looked like a tight little scramble a few days ago, appears to be a Yanked parade again. The New Yorkers have recovered from their slump regardless of injuries. They are hitting again and pulling games out of the last ditch. A [illegible] that has broken doesn't [illegible] as a regular custom.

The White Sox, next to the Athletics, seemed to be the most dangerous chasers after the lead, but Saturday a double expulsion hurt them just when they didn't want [illegible]. [illegible] Eddie [illegible] has [illegible] a snappy [illegible] team but, from where we sit, he hasn't enough pitching to carry through to a [illegible] part [illegible].

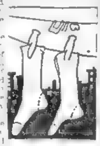
Why They Call 'Em White Sox

HERE'S another outfit whose current appellation was derived from the shade of hosiery used to clothe its nether extremities.



The original Chicago big league ball team was termed White Stockings, a dignified synonym for leg wear. Just where the name "Sox" first saw the light is uncertain. It is of course a natural modification of stockings and has its origin way back in the dim and misty past of baseball.

When the American League entered the Windy City in 1900, President Comiskey seized upon the name White Stockings but decided to shorten it to White Sox. So the Chicago Americans have been known as the White Sox ever since their inception twenty-six years ago. It is one of the few clubs whose name hasn't been changed oftener than a flapper changes her mind.

MOMS went back into the house and turned on the light in the hall.

"You read it," she said, handing Merry the letter. "Y[illegible] read what she's written. I've left my glasses upstairs."

As Merry took the sheet of paper from her the word "married" f[illegible] leaped at her from the scrawled paragraph.

"Why! She's married Derrick Jones!" she gasped, and then slowly read the letter to her mother.

"Moms, dear," Jinny had written. "Derrick and I are going to be married. So don't expect me home until I ring the doorbell."

That was all. She had not even signed it.

Merry looked up at her mother blankly, as she finished it. [illegible] Moms stared back at her just as blankly, for a full minute.

"Let me see the thing," Moms said at last and held out her hand for the letter.

"Well," she remarked, putting it into her apron pocket, "they [illegible] have got married or they [illegible] [illegible] now. I suppose Jinny [illegible] about her age. No one would give a child of sixteen a [illegible] A baby in her second year at high school, n[illegible]!"

She seemed to come to life all at once.

Mom's Angry

"I'll have it annulled! I[illegible] the marriage an[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] cared [illegible] [illegible] Merry as if [illegible] the whole [illegible] that [illegible] [illegible] I never [illegible] She [illegible] fury and [illegible]

"But Moms dear, you were only eighteen when you were [illegible]," Merry reminded her. "An[illegible] and Dad were always pretty [illegible]py."

Moms stalked into the kitchen.

"[illegible] were or not?" she s[illegible] "[illegible] if we were [illegible] it was [illegible] luck than [illegible] me tell you. What d[illegible] eighteen know about [illegible] a [illegible] What does she know about men? Nothing! Nothing at all!"

She got the water pitcher [illegible] bread plate down on the k[illegible] ta[illegible]

[illegible] nearly a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] any [illegible] nothing."

[illegible] in laughing. It was just like her mother to begin to scold her, because she was angry with Jinny.

"I've known Bill only eight months, Moms," she said[illegible] ly. "And I'm not at all sure [illegible] [illegible] that before. Sometimes I think I care a lot for him and sometimes I can't stand the sight of him." Which was the bald truth.

Jinny Returns

They sat down to supper.

But neither of them could eat.

"I'll make some coffee," Moms [illegible]. "It always keeps me awake when I drink it at night, but I guess I'll want to stay awake tonight. I certainly am not going to go to bed until I get some news from Jinny."

At that instant the front door bell rang loudly and she hurried into the hall. Merry heard her open the door and give a little gasp.

Then she reappeared in the doorway, followed by—Jinny! Jinny, all alone, and looking like anything but a blushing bride.

A cap was pulled down over her eyes and her yellow slicker was covered with mud. So were her shoes, and so was one side of her little face.

"Hail to the bride of Lammermoor!" Merry greeted her with a giggle, and she scowled darkly in re[illegible]

"[illegible] bride of Lammermoor, yourself," she snapped, angrily. "I'm no bride. Where do you get that stuff?"

"Jinny, I've told you not to say, 'Where do you get that stuff'," her mother reprimanded her. "Go out [illegible] the kitchen and take off those shoes and that coat. You're getting the carpet all covered with [illegible]."

Jinny kicked the kitchen door open and slammed it behind her.

"[illegible] say a word to [illegible]," Moms whispered to Merry. "Let her do the talking."

She leaned closer and added "She [illegible] in a taxicab."

Jinny was in a much more cheerful and talkative mood by the time [illegible] eaten.

"Well, I feel like myself again," she said to her mother, as she set down the cup. "That's the first food I've had since 12 o'clock today."

Derrick in Jail

Suddenly her smile flashed out. "Did you get that wild note I left in the mail box?" she asked, with a laugh. "I noticed it was gone."

Moms took it out of her apron pocket and laid it on the table.

"We are going to get married right [illegible]," Jinny said. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] above that I was [illegible]

"[illegible] should say [illegible] Moms in [illegible] [illegible] for you, [illegible] he?"

Jinny shrugged her little shoulders.

"Well, [illegible] [illegible] he wasn't [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]"

"Lillie, you ought to be married and have a husband to cook for," Merry said to her one night as she sat watching her "throw a salad together," as she called it.

"How do you know I haven't a husband?" Lillie asked [illegible] the wink she gave Merry [illegible] humor to it.

"Are you?" Merry asked [illegible]ly. But she wouldn't answer her.

It was about a week after [illegible] she came into Merry's room [illegible] night before.

Lillie looked at them. Then she laid her burning cigaret down on the window sill and looked at them a second time.

"Well, of all things!" she exclaimed, in a breathless voice. "Well of all things! Tubby Erskine! How do you happen to know him?"

The Making of a Husband

By Ann Lisle

SUDDENLY the long tension broke and Nickolas Perry and Bertie Lingard jumped at each [illegible] with startling accusations.

"[illegible] want [illegible] I asked [illegible] [illegible] the silence that fol[illegible] [illegible] might [illegible] [illegible] out of [illegible]

Mrs. Cruikshank—That poor, pretty lamb. I do hope she didn't [illegible] here from Zeke's [illegible] [illegible] the middle of the night [illegible] [illegible] Harrison were here.

Nicholas Perry—No need of the Sheriff. Arlette has probably gone [illegible] to the little cottage where she and May used to live. Rosine's cottage."

The last seemed the logical solution. So we drove down the river road to the little tumbledown place that had been the heritage of the Valleau girls. But the cottage was closed. There was no sign of life there.

"It's a bit odd that Zeke and May didn't think of this and come here to look for the child," said Nicholas Perry, suddenly—almost accusingly.

"Zeke can't walk," I protested.

"And May wouldn't be likely [illegible] leave him," added Bertie. "I really think we're [illegible] a great [illegible] over nothing. Arlette might have gone home with the [illegible] or the M[illegible] [illegible] They kno[illegible]

He stopped [illegible] revealing what it was the [illegible] and the [illegible] [illegible] knew. But in a flash it came to me that Henry Sr. and Sheriff Mc[illegible] had witnessed the [illegible] of Nicholas Perry [illegible] May Valleau with the property [illegible] shilling and left Arlette an heir[illegible]ess. Could it be that Bertie Lingard who had struck up a great friendship with the sheriff, was informed about the w[illegible]?

"Zeke has more cause to wish me ill than to want Arlette—" began Nicholas Perry.

Then he too stopped abruptly.

At once a new train of thoughts—of suspicions started up in my mind. I remembered the [illegible] on my floor [illegible] the wedding when May [illegible] [illegible] in me that Zeke was [illegible] [illegible] the will [illegible] because he had [illegible] [illegible] in which Dr. W[illegible] Perry the heir. [illegible] and without think[illegible] [illegible] did you get Arlette's trave[illegible]

"[illegible] sent me a sour [illegible] and then he said [illegible] [illegible] bothering to pretend [illegible] understand mo[illegible] She wanted it.

"[illegible]—did she!" came from Bertie [illegible] an odd intonation [illegible] were both non-committal. I [illegible] tell whether this was de[illegible] or accidental.

"What shall we do now?" I found myself asking.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

LIVING in the country is a wonderful privilege but it's too bad that there isn't a law against week-end guests.

IT'S nice to have friends if you can handcuff them to their own homes over Saturday and Sunday.

ONE guy had so many visitors at his country estate last week that he didn't know half of them. A great big husky fellow tried to throw him out of his own parlor.

HE thought he was a stranger.

FRIENDS drop in for ten minutes and stay three days.

THEY come by the clock and leave by the calendar.

A NANTASKET man has the right idea. He puts barbed wire in all of the easy chairs.

NOT only that but he sprinkles broken bottles on the sofas.

A COUPLE of weeks ago he had so many v[illegible] had to burn the house down to get them out of the dining room.

ONE guy was so hungry he was even stealing the cheese out of the mouse trap.

AFTER he got through with the icebox it looked like a telephone booth.

IT was emptier than the sack of a Scotch Santa Claus.

ANOTHER fellow used fifty dollars' worth of dynamite trying to blow his week-end guests out of the pantry.

IT'S lovely to have visitors, but when night time comes they always get the best beds.

FOR two months now one host hasn't slept in anything but a dog house.

HE doesn't care, but the airedale's getting sore.

THE only way to enjoy yourself in the Summer is to rent a nice big house in the country and move to the city.

DAILY SHORT STORY

I LOVE YOU

By Jack Woodford

IT seemed to Grace that that breath of Spring was but a taunt. As she danced with the various male members of the house party perfunctorily, she was thinking to herself of the twenty-two years which she had left behind her, none of which she regretted in the least.

Beginning with her first knowledge of a mother or a father, she could not remember the time when she had been happy. Of course, there had been extenuating circumstances. Her real mother had died when she was very young, and her first knowledge of a mother had been of her stepmother, a chorus girl whom her father had married as a manifestation of his defense complex toward conventional women, the which his first wife had been a vengeance.

Her father, naturally, had been a rather grouchy individual as long as she could remember him. Naturally, between keeping tabs on her pretty mother and trying to pay her bills at one and the same time. Altogether Grace's home life had been rather ghastly.

The man with whom she was dancing hardly occupied Grace's thoughts at all. She was too busy thinking how poorly the world had treated her. Fairly good-looking she knew herself to be, yet on the other hand, she was also quite aware that no man ever wanted her, for long. True, the quality of her beauty sometimes drew them to her, but invariably she reacted to them in such a way that they soon left, confirming her belief that all men were cads and boors.

The dance was drawing to a close. Grace looked at her partner a little wistfully. It would be nice if he should really express a wish to dance again with her—but they seldom did. However, to her amazement, this man requested that he be granted a moment's conversation out upon the verandah. They went out into the warm moonlight and stood for a moment looking up at the stars. He turned to her, and with no explanation whatever said:

"Miss Robinson, I love you. Unfortunately that is all I can say, for I am—well, obligated; but, I want you to know, always, that I love you." With that he left her. She was breathless. It seemed to her that the moon suddenly shown with a new intensity. The night became beautiful. A little song started in her heart. But she smoldered it quickly. Wouldn't do to be happy—happiness, with her, had led only to regrets always that she had let herself go.

However, the following afternoon Grace had another surprise. Her hostess' husband had been talking to her in the library about some rare old book that he had succeeded in purchasing. Suddenly he broke off in the middle of his discourse and said, without preliminaries.

"Miss Robinson, I love you. Naturally, under the circumstances, I am a cad to say so; but, I simply could not help it. Please forgive me." With that he left the library hurriedly, and Grace stood in the center of the floor, transfixed.

But this was not to be the end of her experiences. That very evening, Bob Reynolds, the youngest and wealthiest member of the house party, whom everybody knew perfectly well, was engaged to marry the Wenrich girl at the close of the season, sought her out as she was walking in the garden.

"I'm leaving ahead of time," he said a little breathlessly as he approached her, "just came out to say good-bye." He paused for a moment awkwardly and then, with eyes half averted, "I, I just couldn't go without telling you the reason—you see, I'm leaving, because I am engaged to be married this Fall—and, the minute I saw you here—I loved you, instantly." He turned and literally ran from her.

Grace walked up and down the garden fighting with herself. It was preposterous, this song that persisted in singing itself in her heart. It would mean tears, surely, beyond the slightest possibility of a doubt, laughter and happiness with her had always been the signal of approaching tears—but she could not still the song. It persisted in singing itself this time, in spite of her.

Somehow she knew, literally knew, when, that evening Alfred McTeague asked her to go riding with him, that he had something to say to her that would not be unlike the pleasant things she had heard from the lips of the other men—but she was not prepared for what he did have to say.

"Grace," he began, after he had parked his car at the side of a lonely road, "I have something rather dreadful to tell you. You know, of course, that Walton, the psychologist, is among the guests here." He hurried on, as though loath to say what he had to say, and afraid of his courage failing. "The old coot put up a job on you. Someone told him that you were a surly girl whom no one could like and he got several of us together and talked us into making an experiment upon you. He got four of us to promise to say that we loved you, and note the effect." An icy finger touched Grace's heart. She might have known, she reflected, that her grief period of happiness was but the harbinger of tears. She was about to make some crushing retort when her companion went on softly.

"I didn't realize it at the time that I promised to do as Walton asked the rest—or rather, there has been a wonderful change in you during the last two days. There was something about you I disliked instantly when I first saw you here, but, in the last forty-eight hours, Oh, Grace, you can't imagine how you've changed. You're more beautiful than any woman I've ever seen. And there's a wistfulness and poignancy about you that reaches every fibre of my being. I've never been really, desperately in love before—though I thought I was, but it was nothing like this. Grace, I love you, and I mean it—you can't guess how I mean it—I want you to marry me. Right away. Tomorrow. If you say no, I can't live." For a long minute Grace struggled with the last wave of the hand of hate, distrust and suspicion as it sank out of sight in her subconsciousness and then she whispered: "All right—on one condition, and that is that Doctor Walton be best man."

THE MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By Helen Rowland

WOMEN no longer exchange recipes for angel-food and popovers across the back fence; but they manage to exchange a lot of little domestic recipes over their ash-trays and jeweled cigarette holders.

Among the favorite "hints," passed from wife to wife, are:

How do you know when your marriage is going to "jell"—or why it refuses to "set."

* * *

How to make an old husband tender and sweet—after picking him clean.

How to draw an admission, a confession or a compliment out of a husband, without a vacuum cleaner.

How to regulate the flame of a man's devotion and keep love simmering along, at an even temperature.

* * *

When to add a pinch of sugar to all you say to a man—and when to take a grain of salt with what he says to you.

* * *

How to keep a man from "spoiling" himself.

* * *

How to feed a man flattery so discreetly that it will neither give him enlargement of the ego or sentimental indigestion.

* * *

How to keep the "love-moths" away from a husband when you leave him alone in the city all Summer—and how to get the kinks out of his habits and morals, when you return.

* * *

Whether to season the domestic relations with reticence or with frankness or with equal quantities of each.

How to warm over love after it has grown cold—and how to make stale kisses seem fresh and tempting.

* * *

How to "preserve" youth and charm and keep the flavor and color of fresh and tender romance.

* * *

How to separate the truth from the camouflage in a man's alibis—and how to clean up the mess after a quarrel without going down on your knees.

* * *

How to uncork a husband's pocket and coax money out of it—and how to vary the daily menu of duty, amusement and sentiment, so as to keep his interest piqued.

* * *

These are the sweet little "sacred confidences" which modern women exchange over the ash-trays and bridge tables, while their innocent unsuspecting husbands are straining every nerve to get through a hard day's work in time, for the ball game.

'You Said It, Marceline!'

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

ON "SEEKING JOY"

HOW CAN ANYONE FEEL
DESPONDENT for long
When NOBODY KNOWS
WHAT is waiting for them
JUST AROUND THE CORNER?
SUCCESS, the perfect
LOVER or glorious health,
Whatever they MOST desire,
May be RIGHT THERE,
Not ONE BLOCK AWAY,
So WHY FALTER?
LIFE is such a
WONDERFUL journey,
It SHOULD BE
ABSORBING to those who
Have a DESTINATION,
And THRILLING to
Those who have no IDEA
WHERE they are going.
Of course, the man who
Does not know where he is Heading for, MAY fall
By the wayside, but
The man in the GUTTER
Gets a mighty good view
Of the stars IF he will
Only LOOK AT THEM,
Whilst the man with his Head in the CLOUDS is Often found gazing sadly
At the PAVEMENT.
THE SECRET IS to know
That ALL BEAUTY is GET-AT-ABLE, and
JOY is ALWAYS waiting
Around SOME CORNER!

RAILS TRY TO GET RIDERS TO RETURN

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

Wm. H. Carter

President William H. Carter of the William H. Carter Co., Needham Heights, declares that the real solution of traffic congestion, recently discussed in this column, lies in inducing the public to return to the railroads for transportation.

It is his suggestion that the Department of Public Utilities compel the railroads to furnish adequate service. He believes in the long run this would prove profitable to the carriers.

* * *

Col. Carter, by the way, is opening to the public a beautiful observation tower on top of Carleeta Park Hill at Needham Heights. I have seen a very pretty observation tower at Newburyport. A complete list of observation towers in New England would make interesting reading.

* * *

The comeback of the Boston & Maine and New Haven is too well known to need more than citing. The prosperity of other New England railroads has also been frequently mentioned, though it deserves pointing out that the Bangor & Aroostook is one of the six best earning rails in America. Both the New Haven and the Boston & Maine, as ably explained from time to time by Messrs. Moulton of the New Haven and Joyce of the B. & M., have been making fine efforts, noteworthy successful, to win back riders.

* * *

It is, therefore, not surprising that we find railroads definitely back on a pre war basis.

Daniel Willard

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, in the 1925 annual report to stockholders states that the road is now back in the physical condition it maintained prior to the war. He says:

"During the year the expenditures for maintenance of fixed plant and equipment were liberal, being, in fact, more than $6,000,000 greater than during the preceding year and equal to 34.37 per cent. of the entire gross earnings.

"For the first time since the termination of Federal control it may now be said that the condition of the physical property is as good as it was before the war. Deferred maintenance has been substantially made up."

Extra trains are being put on and existing trains speeded up in efforts to win back riders. The bus lines, in some cases, are an appeal for passenger traffic. I imagine Mr. Carter has in mind that not enough is being done for cummuters and, as regards many points, it is certain that these are not faring as well as formerly, when they depend upon train service. Doubtless this matter will receive due scrutiny.

* * *

In our column last week we carried several opinions on traffic congestion remedies from others, and have been asked by several leading citizens to submit our own. We do not believe such opinions should be offered without painstaking study, for which, frankly, we have not the time. But it is certain that a lot of effort has been wasted on attempted studies in the past, as, for instance, when a party of Bostonians visited far away towns and cities where the streets run at right angles to one another. The traffic solutions of such towns and cities naturally would not apply in Boston.

* * *

I have heard it said that, while a cow kicked over the lantern that once burned Chicago, an earlier cow, perhaps on her way to the Common, laid out the paths of Colonial Boston that later became public thoroughfares.

* * *

Although the section of the new State highway for Nantasket Beach between Hingham Harbor and the road on the North Weymouth end leading to Crow Point is nearly completed, that section will not be opened for traffic for at least a week. The entire highway between North Weymouth and Hingham Harbor will not be finished before September 1. Opening of the section between the Crow Point road and Hingham Harbor will not relieve Nantasket traffic. As soon as this section is completed that between Crow Point road and Bicknell square, North Weymouth, will be closed. The highway widening is a project directly affecting the taking of land, hundreds of fine residences and stores.

Chairman Louis T. McFadden of the Congressional Committee on Banking and Currency, was mentioned in Washington dispatches as a candidate against Charles S. Hamlin of Boston. Chairman McFadden, however, assures the writer he was not seeking the appointment, adding: Mr. Hamlin's long and splendid service on the Federal Reserve Board entitled him to this reappointment, and I was in no way in opposition to it."

* * *

I am aware that Representative McFadden has been very energetic in behalf of the national banking system, now 63 years old. He was the principal speaker in Boston last February at Hotel Somerset before a meeting of Boston Chapter, American Institute of Banking.

* * *

The able Pennsylvanian's suggestions on that occasion included the following: "The only feasible way to equalize oportunity within the Federal Reserve System is to grant national banks the power to do some of the things that State banks are permitted to do, things that have been demonstrated by experience to be practicable and safe and at the same time require State bank members of the Federal Reserve System to carry on business according to the standards set up by the National Bank Act."

Promising Big Profits

No Limit to the Oral Allurement Unlisted Stock Salesman Can Offer

Apparently there is no limit to the allurement a salesman of unlisted stocks can offer you, provided no witnesses are present. His verbal promise would have no standing in the courts. Also he can promise you big profits, because, if it is not a well-known security, printed quotations will not be able to set you right.

One correspondent recently asked for the address of the Boston "Unlisted Stock Exchange." He had seen in the newspapers the quotations of certain stocks under the heading "Unlisted Stocks." The stocks thus quoted were comparatively well-known securities, in spite of their being unlisted.

The fact that such securities exist makes it easier for the "gyp" salesman to operate. If all unlisted stocks were bad, no one would buy them.

Investment advisers of cautious calibre probably write more frequently than anything else: "Confine your purchases to listed issues, unless you carefully investigate before buying."

It is well also to remember that there is never any need to be in a hurry to buy. The old proverb that "Haste makes waste" is perhaps especially applicable to buyers of unlisted "gyp" stocks.

B. & A. ADDS TO FAST TRAINS WESTWARD

The Boston & Albany's new schedule for the Wolverine, which leaves Boston at 3:15 p. m., gives that express a 24-hour run to Chicago as a solid train; that is, with no cars changed.

It makes stops only at Trinity Place, Worcester, Springfield and Pittsfield, arriving at 8:45 p. m. at Albany. The Wolverine is now the fastest train between Boson and Chicago on which no excess fare is charged.

FOR CLEVELAND.

The Cleveland Limited, a new train, leaves Boston at 3:40 p. m. and is due in Cleveland at 8:30 a. m. It carries sleeping cars for Cleveland and also one for Toronto, where it is due at 7:50 a. m. The Toronto car formerly left Boston at 6:10 p. m. It was added to the Cleveland Limited in order that passengers for Toronto may arrive there in the morning.

The new train carries coaches between Boston and Albany thus providing an important additional coach service in the afternoon. It will make stops at Worcester, Springfield, Westfield, Pittsfield, Chatham, N. Y., and will arrive at Albany at 9:22 a. m.

Other changes in train schedules now into effect are:

The train leaving Boston for Albany and way stations at 8:15 a. m. now runs one to five minutes earlier between Warren and North Wilbraham, maintaining its former schedule at other stations.

DEPART EARLIER.

The train that formerly left Boston at 3:15 p. m. for Worcester and way stations now leaves at 3:10 p. m., and runs approximately five minutes earlier at all stations. Connecting trains on the Newton Lower Falls and Millbury branches are correspondingly earlier.

The train which formerly left Boston at 3:10 p. m. for the Highland branch now leaves at 3:05 p. m., and runs approximately five minutes earlier at all stations.

Wall Street Gossip

ATCHISON handled 44,018 revenue freight cars in week ended July 16, against 38,236 in the same week of last year.

CALL MONEY renewed at 4¼ per cent.

PRICE movements were much mixed.

Cotton Is Lower

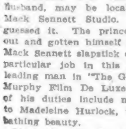
MAE MURRAY'S HUSBAND GETS FILM CHANCE

Mack Sennett Gives Prince Divani Leading Role in Slapstick Comedy

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, July 19.—Prince Divani, Mae Murray's new husband, may be located at the Mack Sennett Studio. You have guessed it. The prince has gone out and gotten himself a role in a Mack Sennett slapstick comedy. His particular job in this instance is leading man in "The Ginsberg and Murphy Film De Luxe" and part of his duties include making love to Madeleine Hurlock, the Sennett bathing beauty.



Mae Murray

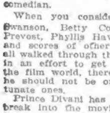
Mack Sennett who has probably started more stars on the road to fame than any other producer in the business, is giving Prince Divani this same opportunity. If he makes good as Miss Hurlock's leading man he will be signed on a contract and given a chance as a comedian.

When you consider that Gloria Swanson, Betty Compson, Marie Prevost, Phyllis Haver and scores and scores of other famous stars all walked through the Sennett gate in an effort to get recognition in the film world, there is no reason he should not be one of the fortunate ones.

Prince Divani has been trying to break into the movies for a long time. I remember in New York he made every effort to get a chance, saying that he was willing to do extra work or anything else just so that he had an opportunity.

His screen name will be David Manor—so if you see a youth tall and with blonde curly hair billed as the leading man in "Ginsberg and Murphy Film De Luxe," you will know that you are seeing the new husband of Miss Murray.

KENNETH HARLAN, having left the Warner Studios for the life of a free lance actor, has waited for more than six weeks to take his pick of the offers that came his way. Kenneth is a wise young man as was evidenced when he married Marie Prevost. He knows that leading men these days are worth their weight in gold and he waited until he was invited to play opposite Colleen Moore in "Twinkletoes," one of the "Limehouse Nights" by Thomas Burke, which is her next First National production.



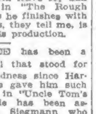
Kenneth Harlan

Colleen is just back from a vacation. And where do you think she elected to spend her holiday, at the home of the parents of her husband, John McCormick. She begins work about next Friday with Charles Brabin directing.

WITH all the discussion going on for a leading man for Pola Negri's picture, "Hotel Imperial," at least the heavy is certain. Noah Beery has been given an important role. Mr. Beery will leave for San Antonio to play in "The Rough Riders," as soon as he finishes with La Belle Pola. This, they tell me, is the location for this production.

SIMON LEGREE has been a symbol of all that stood for villainy and wickedness since Harriet Beecher Stowe gave him such a mean character in "Uncle Tom's Cabin." This role has been assigned to George Siegmann who plays the cruel burgomaster in Marion Davies' "The Red Mill," finished on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot last week and now moves his belongings out to Universal City.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" started with almost as many jinxes as the famous "Ben Hur," but it seems it is ready to be launched now for all the important characters with the exception of Topsy and Eva has been assigned. Lucien Littlefield plays Marks, the lawyer; Marguerita Fisher will continue as Eliza, Arthur Edwin Carewe will play her husband and others in the case are Nelson McDowell, Adolf Milar and Zeliff.



Marion Davies

PETER B. KYNE can be sure that his name will be kept before the motion picture-going public this coming year. He has to my knowledge four stories about to go into production. Universal is included in this number with "Oh, Promise Me," by Kyne. While it sounds like anything but Hoot Gibson, he is the actor chosen for the lead. Lynn Reynolds, who will direct the popular Hoot, is already arranging to take a company with him to the water front in San Francisco, which is the locale of the story.

WARD CRANE says that I speak of him without the qualifying phrase, "Ward Crane and others." In this case I am leaving out the others and mentioning that Ward plays an important part in "Upstage" a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production.

WEST TO SAY WHO'LL RULE CONGRESS

Votes in Agricultural States Will Turn Scale, Says Hapgood

By NORMAN HAPGOOD

Washington, July 19 (Universal).—The makeup of the Congress that is elected, as to all of the House and a third of the Senate, the coming November, but does not get into action for over a year from that time, will turn largely on the votes in western agricultural States like Iowa, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin.

If we can judge from the fact that McKinley lost, as compared with his preceding vote, in Southern Illinois, agrarian unrest has found its way into that State also.

Thirty years ago Bryan sprang into national fame as the leader of this kind of discontent, which already animated one element in the party.

Nothing Jefferson did shocked the financial and conservative centres more than his cordial approval of the armed rebellion of the farmers who followed Daniel Shay in his hopeless attempt to take the government of Massachusetts out of the hands of lawyers and moneyed men.

POPULIST THEORIES.

Populist movements lost on free silver, partly because the drift of economic history stopped the rising purchasing power of the dollar.

But the rest of the Populist program, such as regulation of railroads and various monopolies and devices for direct government, like primaries and popular election of Senators, was taken over by more conservative leaders and carried out.

The farmer, to put it in other words, has been able to have other people regulated in the way, more or less, that he wanted them regulated, but he has not been able to receive as much direct treasury aid himself as he thinks he deserves.

He is using the new rural credit banks, and will no doubt profit in the end from such help to co-operation as is favored by Mr. Coolidge and not opposed by successful co-operatives like those in the dairy industry.

North Dakota should be particularly interesting to watch. Nyes victory was not large as compared with previous figures in that State. On the contrary, from a comparative standpoint, it was rather close. It is the one State in the country in which a farm organization captured the whole State machinery and put into effect a sweeping program. That program failed. All sorts of excuses are offered, but it failed.

One form of regulating the privileges of other people that the farmer apparently will not accept is tariff-construction along lines such as were followed by Wilson, instead of lines drawn by men whose sympathies are dominated by big industries enjoying tariff privileges. I can see no sign that the farmer will change on that point. I believe the members of Congress, however, who are elected by the discontented country element, will vote against the ship subsidy, again made an issue by the new president of the Shipping Board.

DEMOCRATIC SENATE?

My guess is that the Democrats will either organize the Senate or control it wherever they can get two or three irregulars to vote with them. In the House I believe the Republican majority will be considerable, but not such as to let Mr. Longworth and two or three associates act like Joe Cannon.

The weakness of the anti-Republican position will be what it has been. The Democrats will not be able to agree on any policy, where exciting domestic policies are concerned, after the next election any more than before. They will split on farm policies and drink, just as they were unable to agree on any policy opposed to the ideas of Mr. Mellon, Mr. Coolidge, Senator Smoot, and Mr. Hoover on taxation and finance.

'THE SAVAGE' AT OLYMPIA

With Ben Lyon displaying a full-size, home-grown beard in "The Savage," now at the Washington street Olympia, a touch of realism occurs that goes well with his goatskin raiment, a pet brotosaurus and the other cleverly "faked" prehistoric appurtenances of this Earl Hudson comedy.

Professional rivalry between two scientific magazines precipitates a search into the Mariposa Islands for a live specimen of some white savages that are claimed by one publication to exist there. As a hoax, the other paper sends on ahead one of its youthful editors to pose as one of the uncultured inhabitants, await the arrival of the gullible explorers, submit to capture and then expose the scheme as bogus.

But even the best laid plans in comedy are liable to falter; there is always Cupid to reckon with and willing subjects ready for the reckoning. May McAvoy is Ben's nemesis, and he falls an eager victim.

The usual short film subjects and a bright bill of vaudeville round out the program.

BRITAIN SEEKS NO U. S. DEBT REVISION

London, July 19 (I.N.S.).—The British government will make no effort to secure a revision of the terms of the debt funding agreement with the United States, despite renewed public agitation, it was stated by the Foreign Office today.

The spokesman stated that the British government realizes that any such effort would be hopeless.

WAR FILM EPIC AT FENWAY

"The Greater Glory," now current at the Fenway, is the first film treatment of the war from the Viennese standpoint, and it is done with a sincerity and an artistry that places it among the best pictures of the season.

A long list of favorites is included in the cast, among whom are Anna Q. Nilsson, May Allison, Jean Hersholt, John Sainpolis, Conway Tearle, Ian Keith and Lucy Beaumont. Curt Rehfeld, a native Austrian, is responsible for the direction, and the scenario was adapted by June Mathis from Edith O'Shaughnessy's novel, "The Viennese Medley."

The companion picture is Raymond Griffith's new bit of hilarity, "Wet Paint," a comic mixture of hopelessly intermingled drinks and automobiles.

Starting Wednesday, "Morganson's Finish," with Anita Stewart and Johnnie Walker, and "Hell Bent Fer Heaven," with Patsy Ruth Miller and Gardner James, will be shown.

SHRINER BAND IN 'AMERICA'

Tonight at Braves Field, the Aleppo Shrine band will give another of its entertaining concerts. The presence of this famous band will be as an added attraction to the stupendous super-sesqui-centennial spectacle "America" which opens the second and last week of its engagement in this city, the closing performance being scheduled for Saturday night of this week.

The full compliment of the band, with its 300 musicians, all members of the Shrine, including the nationally famous drum corps, will be on hand to render an arranged concert of popular numbers.

None of the 40 big vaudeville and circus acts of the regular "America" program will be eliminated and the fireworks display will be as great as any yet seen at Braves Field.

DEMOCRATS MUST FIND NEW MAN TO HEAD TICKET

Milwaukee, July 19 (A.P.).—The sudden death of Judge Martin L. Lueck of Beaver Dam, Wis., Democratic national committeeman from Wisconsin and the party's nominee for Governor, makes it necessary for Wisconsin Democrats today to select a new candidate for governor. Judge Lueck died yestreday at Fond Du Lac, after a brief illness. Judge Lueck in 1924 polled the largest vote ever cast for a Democratic gubernatorial candidate in Wisconsin.

With only eight days remaining in which to file nomination papers a meeting has been called for Monday of candidates for State offices, at which a successor to Judge Lueck will be considered. Among those suggested are Burr W. Jones, former State supreme Court justice; Vincent J. Schoenecker of Milwaukee, and John M. Callahan, State chairman.

Why Girls Leave Home

Testimony That SOME Parents Are TOO Strict.

If every mother and every father in Massachusetts were gifted with an understanding heart, it would be a fine thing to place before them the letters written by a girl inmate of one of our correctional institutions which have come into the possession of the special commission investigating the causes of crime and misdemeanor.

"Kept down" at home, as the saying is, the young woman who wrote these letters married a man she "liked but did not love." She soon found out that liking and loving are not the same.

Letter No. 1 is addressed to a sister at home, apparently chafing under restrictions like those which drove the prisoner into a loveless marriage:

"I liked him when I first saw him and if it hadn't been so hard for me at home—if Mother only loved us a little, anyway—I would have waited, as I am now asking you to wait, before it is too late.

"If Mother would only let us have our friends come to see us at home, and let us have parties at home once in awhile, like other girls, what a difference that would have made to me!

"So, sister, if this letter gets to you before you have got married, take a fool's advice and stay at home, at least until I can come back, which I hope and pray will be soon.

"And you must remember that Mother never went out when she was a girl and she thinks we ought to do the same as she did. She thinks that by keeping us in, and not letting us have friends, we will be better. Now if you have a friend that loves you dearly enough to have you for his wife, he will be more than glad to meet Mother and the family; and although he will realize she is a little old-fashioned he will appreciate her care of you."

[illegible]etter No. 2 the Girl in the Reformatory addresses to her [illegible]er:

"[illegible]other, do you want to lose [illegible], and have 'Z' do the same thing as I did? Do you know, Mother, you are driving them away from home, just as you drove me away?

"You are too strict with them. You ought to let them have some friends, and little parties at home. They ought not to be afraid to bring their friends to their home, as I was.

"You must remember, Mother, that times change, and people, too. Mother, are you going to keep 'Y' at home, or are you going to drive her away? Please, Mother, show her that you love her. Give her a little consolation at night when she comes home all tired out after her day's work at the mill. Then she will stay with you and, I am sure, be happy.

These letters probably will be submitted to Commissioner Bates as indicative of at least one reason why girls leave home. Young people, and especially those who are self-supporting, want at least a LITTLE freedom. They do not like being "bossed around" too much, held down too firmly. They would like to entertain their young friends at home. When they are not permitted to do so they easily form the habit of meeting these friends—or others—AWAY from home.

But there are some parents who have no right to be parents, who do not understand young people, who are constitutionally unable to put themselves in the other person's place. To such parents it would do little or no good to show the pathetic letters of "Mrs. X." They would not understand them.

"Yes," they would say, "and look where SHE is, now, for not being said by HER Father and Mother. Believe ME, young lady——!"

Must Sell Self at Home

Man Should Make a Hit at Own Fireside

A psychologist announces that the young man who writes vigorous love letters to his sweetheart is really an advertising expert.

He is.

He is applying advertising to one of the greatest businesses in the world.

If a man is to get and keep a woman he should remember that he constantly has to sell himself to her.

Many a man works hard to achieve success in his business, to get on in life, but he neglects the important business of standing well with his family. If he realized that no inconsiderable part in his happiness consists in happy domestic relations, he would work as hard to sell himself at home as he does to sell himself on the market.

Many a man ought to take a hitch in his arrangements and apply himself to the business of making a hit at home.

This would save many a matrimonial ship from going on the rocks.

Murderers Dread Certain Punishment

The Rope Does Not Scare Them

When you denounce capital punishment, as unworthy of civilization, and setting the killing example to the criminal, you are told "Murders will increase, if criminals cease to fear the gallows or electric chair."

That is not true. Criminals fear EVEN JUSTICE, from which there is no hope of escape. Our criminal laws are a gamble, not one murderer in three is punished, all criminals are gamblers, and many of the killers dread life imprisonment more than quick death.

"They should have hanged me," said Martin J. Durkin, sentenced to thirty-five years in jail, for killing a Federal official. It was fear of prison work and monotony, not remorse, that made him say it. Make life imprisonment certain, ALWAYS, for murderers, and you will discourage the killer more than the mere possibility of capital punishment could discourage him.

Better Than Potatoes

Wheat Grows in Sunlight.

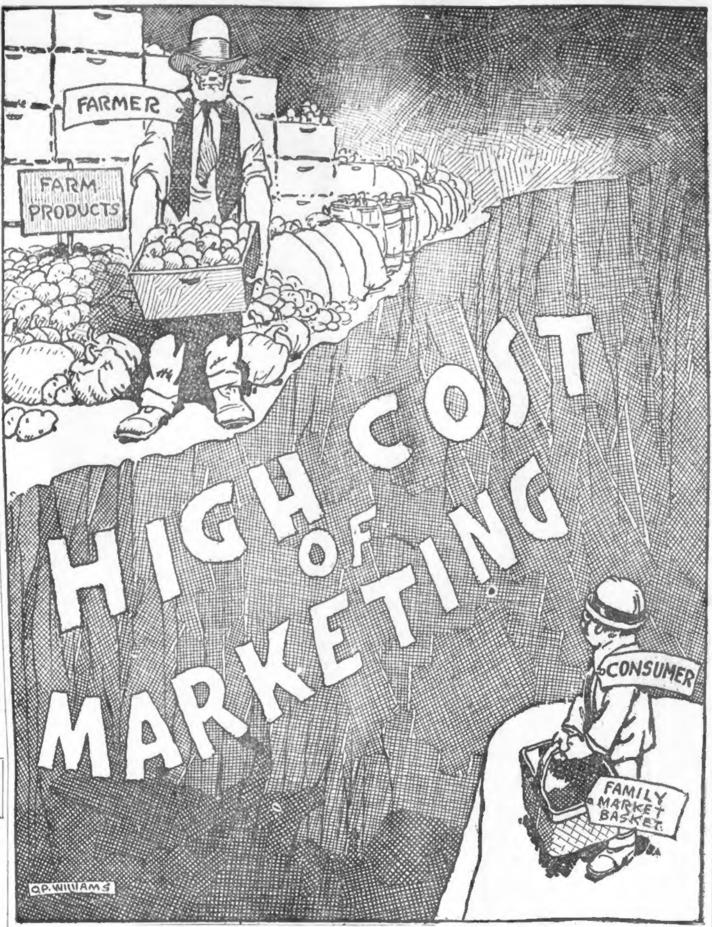
Wheat is a better food than potatoes and Italy's ruler makes a mistake trying to reduce wheat consumption by making the Italians substitute potatoes for spaghetti and macaroni. Whatever grows in sunlight is better for men, generally speaking, than that which grows below the ground.

Wheat is the food on which the Roman and Italian nations have risen to greatness. Caesar's legions carried wheat in a bag and chewed the raw grain as they marched. You see the results in ground-down, perfect teeth found in ancient Roman skulls.

A potato diet does not build bone or muscle as wheat does. And, besides, trying to force a change in diet is almost as dangerous as trying to force a change in religion upon a reluctant people.

The Unbridged Gap -:-

By O. P. Williams



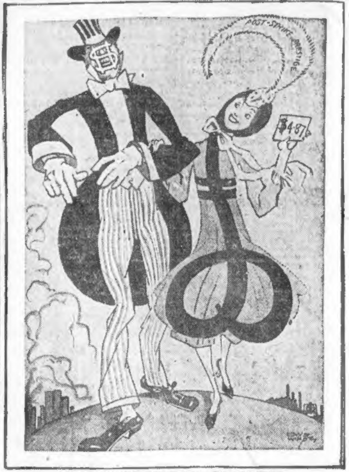
THE artist pictures a chasm between the farmer and the consumer. Of course there are connecting bridges, but they are toll bridges and the tolls are excessive.

It has usually been assumed that the task of opening better communication with reduced tolls is up to the farmer solely. At least most of the counsel is aimed at him.

As a matter of fact, the toter of the market basket, if he would fill it more cheaply, will have to help.

The Pound Above the Dollar

Britain Rejoices, Other Nations Take Notice



MISS "POUND STERLING" CELEBRATES.

For eleven years, because of the war, the British pound sterling has been below par as compared with the United States dollar, some times SO FAR below as to cause the British Government serious alarm.

In spite of this the British decided to pay their debt to the United States. When the arrangement was made, Mr. Kellogg, Secretary of State, predicted that the payment would cause the pound sterling's recovery, since THOSE THAT PAY THEIR DEBTS HAVE GOOD CREDIT.

And a nation's rate of exchange is, after all, a question of the nation's credit.

Recently, to the amazement of everybody, including the British themselves, the pound rose ABOVE the dollar. It might be said Great Britain with all her terrific war losses, and in spite of her paying and lending out thousands of millions of dollars, stood at the head of the world in her national credit.

This drawing by David Wilson, published in the excellent London illustrated paper, The Sphere, shows a British idea of the pound sterling celebration. Miss Pound Sterling is having a gay party; the mark down her front indicates the pound, and her companion is the poor old United States dollar. He is represented as a colored gentleman devoted to jazz, but we don't object to that.

It is a good thing for the United States and all the world that Britain has recovered financially. The British are our customers and the customers of all other nations. And we also are their customers.

This world after all, except when it starts to cutting throats, is a great business concern in which merchants and the manufacturers build up the foundation on which civilization can grow.

If you are in business, you want your customers to be prosperous. You can only GET what they CAN PAY. Therefore, we welcome the gay party of Miss Pound Sterling. Let that charming young lady go "as far and as high as she likes." She has our blessing.

LEAVING THE FARM FOR THE CITY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

DURING the past year, according to a report made by the Department of Agriculture, there has been a decrease in the farm population of the United States of nearly half a million.

The year before that it decreased 182,000.

The population of the country as a whole is increasing; that of the rural districts is decreasing.

The definite trend is away from the farm to the city.

A cable from Paris tells the same story.

The population of the country districts of France continues to flow to the large cities in spite of all efforts of the government to stem it.

The general census, just taken, shows a declining population in all rural areas there except those adjacent to large industrial centres.

In America the automobile and the movie have been the two big elements in accelerating this movement from the farm to the city.

In olden times entertainment was found in country affairs; now trips to the city are substituted.

The automobile, making quick runs to the city after supper for movies and other entertainment possible, has given young people of the farming communities a taste of city life in its brightest aspect.

They see the city relaxed. They see it in the role of playboy. And they like it.

The movies, shown in every cross-roads village, picture life in the big city as one of adventure, fine clothes and quick wealth.

There is no hay to pitch, no mules to curry and no meadow larks to listen to before dawn.

However, the dust-filled, sardine-can subways and the high cost of living in the city are left out of the picture.

"The farm is where they work; the city is where they play."

This idea abetted by the auto and movie has its effect in leading young people on the farms to choose the city when they grow up.

It has played a large part in the trend toward urban life which has been noted in recent years.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Much wealth, how little worldlings can enjoy.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

HOW easy to love Beauty as she goes along the sunlit ways of the world, to poise in majesty on mountain snows, to frolic in the sea-foam's flags unfurled! Her loveliness is an unceasing lure, a gleam that greets and gladdens every eye, cannot endure, but linger only in the memory. But truth owns beauty men too often miss beneath the simple, homely garb she wears; they do not dream the magic of her kiss, nor glimpse the wonder of the gift she bears. And when she passes on in common guise they little think that, could they see aright, before her splendors they would veil their eyes, as men from darkness facing sudden light.

LISTEN WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

PETER doesn't want to go to school next term.

Nor does he want to work this Summer. He wants to go hitch-hiking.

Peter lies.

He's cowardly. He seems to have lost all his sense of shame about it, too.

He seems to his family the laziest person on earth. He won't get up in the morning, nor do any useful thing all day.

He's careless and untidy to the point of filthiness.

He's peevish or appalingly bad tempered. "Why he acts just as if he was crazy sometimes," complains his mother. "He torments the whole family—seems to hate them all."

The amazing thing is that this change has come upon Peter almost over night. Last year, when he was fourteen, Peter was the most lovable and tractable of boys. He was doing well in school and was the idol of his home. Other mothers pointed with envy at Peter and said what a comfort he was to his mother. After school he worked and saved his money. Peter's family had great hopes for him.

Then, in the course of a month or two, this dreadful changling came in Peter's place. And naturally the family are alternating between rage and despair.

"I was so sure that OUR boy was going to turn out beautifully," wails Peter's mother. "And now he does the most dreadful things. I never know what to expect next. Why, if they came to me and told me he had stolen something, I wouldn't be surprised. He's so changed he might just as well be another boy. I suppose it is this dreadful crime wave that is sweeping the country. I always laughed at it. I was sure it wouldn't touch US. But you can see for yourself what it has done for Peter. And there never was a nicer boy before this last year. He was such a darling baby!"

Peter Sulks

"Young pup!" growls Pe[illegible] father. "I've a mind to break [illegible] bone in his body. I suppose he's got an idea he wants to be one of these boy bandits you read about. Well, I'll bandit him. He'll know who's boss in this house!"

And in the midst of all this fury and lamentation sulks Peter. Poor, confused, pimply, awkward, lazy, frightened Peter, who is more at a loss than any of them to know what has happened to the happy, confident, well behaved boy of last Summer.

Life seemed so easy to Peter last year—so full of promise and adventure. He'd have licked any boy who'd said he was a coward or a liar. He had a fine contempt for any boy who was lazy or dirty or a dumbbell at school. Not that he thought much about his own admirable attributes. He just liked "that kind of a guy." That was all. So he was that kind of a guy.

But now he isn't that kind of a guy. He's all the things he has despised in other fellows. And for the first time in his life he is thinking about himself with a dreadful rage and fear and self pity. That's the worst of it all—the everlasting thinking about himself. He never thought about himself before. He was too interested in having a good time. Thinking about yourself was sissy stuff. But now he thinks about himself all the time. He can't stop it. It has fastened itself on him like a dreadful habit. And the more he thinks the more bewildered and unhappy and infuriated he gets. For he can't understand himself at all. He doesn't know why he has suddenly grown lazy, cowardly, stupid and dishonest. He only knows that life has suddenly become a sickening, shameful thing, and that because he is so hurt he wants to strike out and hurt some one else.

Adolescent Youth

This isn't the strange story of a psychopathic case. It's the story of every adolescent boy. It is the story which every parent should know by heart before the boy is born. But very few of them do know this story, and because of that, youth so often is maimed beyond the healing.

Adolescent—the years between childhood and maturity. For a boy these years lie between fourteen and twenty-four. They are the most difficult and dangerous years of life. The whole nature seems to twist, convulse, upheave, and undergo a thousand transformations. One day the boy will be a gallant soldier—the next day a cowardly sneak. On the next he will be an artist, a poet, a dreamer. On the next an insufferable brat. At one time he will seem phenomenally bright—at another simple minded. Often there will come periods when he will seem really insane. Sometimes children do go insane during these periods.

It is a time of fearful perplexity for both the child and the parent. Yet it is a perfectly natural period and could be tided over in safety if it were understood. Understanding, sympathy, love, patience, reasonable discipline, wholesome food, plenty of exercise, interesting work—these things will do the trick if the parent be wise and devoted. But unless there is both wisdom and devotion, the changing spirit is apt to suffer and inflict deep, enduring hurts.
